Southerners Pound On Civil Rights Bill

. . . Final Oratory Under Way In Senate

Washington (AP) — Southern senators kept up their verbal pounding of the House-passed civil rights bill early Friday after the Senate shut off any further efforts to amend it.

Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-SC) held the floor until shortly past midnight. Three of his Dixie colleagues spoke earlier.

The Senate finally recessed until 10 a.m. following brief speeches by Sens. Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif) and Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va).

The Senate carried the bill almost to the point of passage late in the afternoon by giving it a third reading, a parliamentary step that bars the offering of additional amendments.

Talk Unlimited

But this didn't put a limit on how long senators can talk about the bill before it is brought to a final vote.

Southern foes made plain they still had plenty to say, although all indications were they would not attempt to mount any organized filibuster.

Other senators who regard the bill as too weak also are expected to be heard from before it is sent back to the House for action on amendments adopted by the Senate.

Party leaders were hopeful, nonetheless, that the Senate could pass the bill late Friday. If not, they planned another session on Saturday.

Thurmond, who began speaking at 9:30 p.m., said the civil rights bill was before Congress only because of election-year politics.

Before he took the floor, Sens. Herman Talmadge (D-Ga), John Sparkman (D-Ala) and John Stennis (D-Miss) had denounced the bill as unconstitutional and as an invasion of states' rights.

The Senate chamber was virtually deserted. As Thurmond spoke the only senator in sight much of the time was Sen. Byrd who presided most of the night.

Kuchel, the assistant GOP leader, popped in and out, however. He was staying around as the representative of the Republicans.

Staff Farm Writer

Leigh's Tom Hekrdle walked away with FFA's top individual plum Thursday night as he was revealed as the new Star Farmer of Nebraska.

Hekrdle, 19, a 1959 Clarkson High graduate, was picked from 109 State Farmers at the 32nd annual State FFA convention at the College of Agriculture.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hekrdle of Leigh, Tom operates a 44-head dairy herd and has a balanced corn, oats and alfalfa crop program.

He's been active in dairy shows for years and was the gold medal judge in Nebraska at the National Dairy Congress in 1958. His net worth is $14,240.

Area Star Farmers named are Douglas Temple, a Gordon High School senior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Temple; Thomas Shirkey, Broken Bow senior, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Shirkey; and Roger Hanke, Central City 1958 graduate, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hanke.

Ten adults received honorary State Farmer Degrees for contributing time and interest to the FFA program.

They are:

William Gold II, Lincoln, president and general manager of Gold's of Nebraska; J. J. Isaacson, Omaha, general manager of Ak-Sar-Ben; Clarence Hanke, Central City, father of Area Star Farmer; Allen E. Temple, Gordon, father of Area Star Farmer; Joe Hekrdle, Leigh, father of Area Star and Star Farmer; Norval Utemark, West Point, Voc. Ag. instructor; Ralph Eickhoff, Columbus, Voc. Ag. instructor; Charles Manke, Omaha, agricultural agent for Union Pacific Railroad; and Arnold Peterson, Omaha, farm editor, WOW-TV.

The Pender FFA chapter walked away with the laurels in Parliamentary Procedure competition.

The chapter — Don Kuhn, advisor — was awarded $250 from the Sears Foundation.

Other blue ribbon winners were North Platte and Kimball, receiving $150 prizes from the foundation. Callaway, Waverly and Valentine clubs earned $50 awards.

Other chapters in the running were Cozad and Pawnee City.

Cash awards will be used for production projects by winning chapters.

State Farmers Named—P. 18

Seward's Jim Garber talked his way into the FFA Public Speaking winner's circle and was awarded $100 by the national chapter. He'll represent the state at the regional contest in Minnesota this fall.

Blue ribbon winners were Joe Raus of North Bend, Kenneth Vogel of Mitchell and Roland Doerr of Plainview. Don Ulmer of Alma and Terry Nodlinski of Grant earned whites.

Curt Bromm of Takamah became the new state Creed Speaking champion.

Other winners in order of placing were: Tim Storer of Ogallala, Wayne Davis of Harrison, Rodney Samp of Ansley, Arthur Abele of Holmesville, David Kraeger of Plattsmouth, Larry L. Viterna of Verdigre and Mike O'Hara of Grand Island.

All award winners had previously won district contests before entering state competition.

Lundgren Talk Brought Firing

. . . Says Atty.

Omaha (AP)—WOW President Howard Lundgren was fired as society president because of a "talk accusing everyone of wrong doing," Omaha Atty. George L. DeLacy said late Thursday.

DeLacy, who represents 4 Woodmen directors, said Lundgren made the talk last Tuesday at a board of directors meeting in Miami, "then left the meeting and checked out of his hotel. That was why he was fired." Lundgren was not available Thursday night for comment.

Stu Is Seeking Delegate Votes

. . . TOURS SO.-CENTRAL NEBRASKA

By Don Walton

Sen. Stuart Symington went hunting Thursday across more than 500 miles of sun-drenched south-central Nebraska.

The Democratic presidential candidate was stalking big game—delegate candidates to his party's national convention in Los Angeles next July.

His ammunition was a handsome smile, a hearty handshake and patient readiness to discuss his views on a host of national issues.

Receptions

Symington met with prospective delegates in hotel receptions at North Platte and Lincoln.

He also tossed in a noon appearance at Eppley Airfield in Omaha for good measure.

Friday, the Missouri senator flies to Grand Island for the final stop on his hurried 25-hour Nebraska swing.

Symington told newsmen he would like to gather "as many supporters in Nebraska as I can."

Write-In?

Asked specifically if he hopes to trigger a write-in campaign in his behalf in the Cornhusker presidential primary May 10, the senator suggested:

"I'll leave the method (of attracting support) up to my friends in Nebraska."

Front-running Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts is the sole entry in the May presidential sweepstakes.

Earlier, Symington spelled out specific reasons why he considers presidential primaries relatively unimportant.

Convention

"I think the convention ought to mean something," the tall, soft-spoken senator suggested in Omaha.

It is better, he said, to have all 1,521 delegates make the final decision than to rely on the 106 delegates who will represent the only 4 contested primaries of 1960.

Results of the Wisconsin primary this week proved only one thing, Symington contended: "that the American people want to vote Democratic."

A capsule look at Symington's busy day Thursday:

Omaha—met with the press and chatted with a couple hundred airport greeters, including a band, Mayor John Rosenblatt and Democratic National Committeeman Bernard Boyle.

North Platte—a live television appearance following a quiet airport welcome, then a hand-shaking tour of the Pawnee Hotel lobby, a press conference and a delegate reception attended by about 40 persons.

Lincoln—a noisy airport welcome, chiefly by 75 members of the University of Nebraska Youth for Symington, a band, Administrative Assistant Robert Conrad and State Chairman Russell Hanson, a meeting with newsmen, and a dinner appearance before some 160 persons.

Belts Benson

Symington roasted Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson and the administration for what he termed an unrealistic farm program.

The former secretary of the Air Force had specific proposals regarding the nation's costly defense program.

"It now has enough money. What we do need is elimination of waste," Symington pointed out.

To accomplish defense economy, he said, we should modernize the Army and Marine Corps; devise a single war plan; boost the authority and prestige of the secretary of defense, and reduce harmful service rivalry.

Castor Bean Crop Planned In State

By Betty Person

Nebraska will launch production of a new crop this spring—castor beans—which can develop into a "substantial" money crop for its farmers, State Agricultural Director Pearle Finigan announced Thursday.

A minimum of 1,000 acres of the new crop will be planted this spring, and two vegetable oil processing firms have guaranteed they will market as much as the state can produce, Finigan said.

The announcement was made following a conference in Finigan's office with members of the South Central Nebraska Agricultural and Industrial Corporation, newly-formed organization which will act as the contracting agency with the two processing firms.

O. J. McDougal of Hastings, member of the South Central Nebraska AIC organization promoting the crop, said tests have been made for several years which show yields in Nebraska running between 2,000 and 3,000 pounds per acre on irrigated land.

Tests on non-irrigated land have yielded from 1,500 to 2,500 pounds per acre.

The market has been running from $6 to $7 per hundred-weight FOB on either coast where the two processing firms: Pacific Vegetable Oils Corp. of San Francisco, Cal., and Baker Castor Oil Co. of Bayonne, N.J., are located.

Officers of the Hastings organization, which expects to become legally incorporated by late next week, include Robert Hoagland, president, and Andrew Sherman, vice president, both of Hastings.

Other members of the organization who met Thursday with Finigan were Sen. Richard Marvel, Wallace Chaloupka, McDougal and R. Howard Smith, all of Hastings.

Castor beans are used in a variety of products including protective coatings such as oil paints, lacquer and varnish; cosmetics and pharmaceuticals; plastics; lubricant printing ink; brake lining; leather preservatives, and "cognac" oil.

CPPD May Open Food Tests Plant

Consumers Public Power District disclosed Thursday it is exploring energetically the possibility of establishing a Food Irradiation Research Center in Nebraska, perhaps near CPPD's Hallam atomic power plant 22 miles southwest of Lincoln.

The federal government is launching two programs, one by the Army Quartermaster Corps for military use and another sponsored by the Atomic Energy Commission for civilian food markets.

CPPD general manager R. L. Schacht reported that Dr. Emerson Jones, CPPD's nuclear physicist, was in Washington conferring with AEC and Army officials in charge of the programs.

CPPD hopes to bring one or both of the programs to Nebraska as part of the state's drive for increased industrial development, Schacht said.

Checking Plan

Jones is investigating details of the government's plan to embark on a new 6-year, $5 million food irradiation program, calling for a research facility which should be operational in about two years.

Although the location of the research facility has not been determined, CPPD says the timetable may fit neatly into the scheduled "On the Line" operation of the Hallam nuclear power facility in 1962.

Schacht said that CPPD, in exploring the food irradiation possibilities, has the cooperation of the Lincoln Industrial Development Corp. and its president, A. Q. Schimmel; the University of Nebraska and Chancellor Clifford Hardin, and the Nebraska Resources Division through David Osterhout and Nathan Gold.

Newsboys Kick Off London, Paris Trip

Two Sunday Journal and Star carriers excitedly ascended the flight ramp at Lincoln Municipal Airport Thursday to begin an 11-day all-expense-paid trip to London and Paris.

Bill Muggy, 14, of 725 So. 38th, and Steven Stemper, 10, of Peru, winners of The Sunday Journal and Star and Parade Magazine's London-Paris Adventure Tour, bade good-bye to parents and friends as they began their first plane ride.

Upon arrival in New York Thursday night, the boys met 71 other contest winners from various other papers, and spent the evening sightseeing, climaxed by a kickoff dinner at a New York hotel.

Bill stayed overnight in New York; however, Steven boarded a Boeing 707 jet and left for London Thursday night. He is part of an advance of 7 boys who flew ahead and will meet the other carriers in London.

The boys will see the most famous sights of London and Paris during their tour and will present the mayor of Paris and the lord mayor of London with two of the biggest, choicest ears of Nebraska corn.

Before returning home Easter Sunday, they'll be guests of honor and the reason for a local holiday and festival in the town of Robinson, France. The trip will be climaxed by a final banquet in New York.

Upon their return to Nebraska, Bill and Steven will bring Sunday Journal and Star readers a short resume of their trip, and resume their more familiar newspaper routine.

Bill, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Muggy, is a student at Lincoln Southeast High School.

Steven is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Stemper. Mr. Stemper is an assistant coach and instructor at Peru State Teachers College.

Lancaster County schools will receive $269,692.07 this year from state apportionment funds, County School Supt. Glenn E. Turner announced Thursday.

Thousands Of French Farmers Battle Police

FIXING OF PRICES IS RESENTED

Sens, France (AP) — Ten thousand angry farmers battled riot police Thursday night after a mass demonstration against government pricefixing farm policies.

Authorities reported 12 police officers and 3 demonstrators were injured. Police said some officers were cut by hurled stones and some suffered from tear gas apparently thrown by the demonstrators.

Police said that although they used many tear gas bombs to break up the riot, several gas grenade shells found afterward were of American manufacture and of a kind not used by police here.

The rally at Sens was one of 18 farm meetings throughout France Thursday. About 200,000 farmers massed in a nationwide show of protest. The farmers claim the price ceilings, aimed at keeping down the rising cost of living for city workers, are eating away farm profits and driving many farmers toward bankruptcy.

Among French farmers, the wine growers are especially angry. The government's anti-alcohol campaign has cut down their market. Recently they have been forced to compete with cheap Algerian wine shipped through France in tank-truck loads and blended with the more expensive old varieties.

EX-PARTY CHIEF SAYS STU WILL GET DEMO NOD

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP)—A former chairman of the Democratic National Committee predicted Thursday Sen. Stewart Syington of Missouri will win the party's presidential nomination in July.

Frank E. McKinney, who held the committee post in 1951-52, said he believes Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts will be dumped at Los Angeles.

McKinney, himself a Catholic, said prejudices against Kennedy's Catholicism will force the party to nominate "everybody's alternate choice Symington."

CONNIE NICHOLAS

Con Nicholas Begins Her Prison Term

Indianapolis (AP) — Connie Nicholas finally started her prison term Thursday for killing her millionaire lover, hoping she'll come out well-educated.

The graying, 45-year-old divorcee surrendered voluntarily at the Indiana woman's prison, giving up plans for further court appeals with the explanation:

"You can fight just so long until you run out of money."

The Indiana Supreme Court upheld her conviction March 16.

She told Mrs. Dorothy Gardner, prison superintendent, she'd like to take a language course while she serves 2 to 21 years for the death of handsome Forest Teel.

Teel, married, and Mrs. Nicholas had carried on a 15-year love affair before the fatal shooting on July 31, 1958.

Mrs. Nicholas entered prison jauntily and jokingly asked Mrs. Gardner to be assigned to "the bridal suite." Mrs. Gardner didn't reply.

Globemaster Dumps Cargo, Lands Safely

San Francisco (AP) — A huge C124 globemaster, with two of its 4 engines out and a third sputtering, made it to safety to Hamilton Air Force Base Thursday night after the crew had prepared for an ocean landing.

It carried 11 crewmen. Trouble on the flight from Hawaii to Travis AFB, 60 miles northwest of San Francisco, began when the Military Air Transport Service plane was 500 miles from here.

Capt. James Kolb, the pilot, ordered 14 tons of cargo jettisoned and radioed for help. The Coast Guard dispatched two escort planes. The Globemaster landed at 9:18 p.m.

By coincidence, another MATS plane, with 84 persons aboard, radioed that it was having trouble with one engine but could easily make it to Travis.

Specialist Condemns Cigarets

. . . In 'Cancer Trial'

Pittsburgh (AP) — Cigaret smoking can be definitely linked with lung cancer, an internal medicine and therapeutics specialist testified Thursday in Federal Court.

"Heavy smoking of cigarets was the one thing in common I found in all the epidermoid lung cancer cases with which I was affiliated," stated Dr. William F. Kremer, medical director of the Denver Chemical Corp., Hinsdale, N.Y.

Dr. Kremer was a key witness in a cabinet maker's civil damage suit against the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Otto Pritchard, 61, of Pittsburgh, filed the suit claiming he contracted lung cancer by smoking the firm's brand of Chesterfield cigarets for 23 years.

Tells of Studies

Dr. Kremer told the court that he had "never known or read about a case of confirmed epidermoid lung cancer" that was not accompanied by a history of heavy smoking. He added:

"I have made critical examinations of the various incidents of epidermoid lung cancer, including the effects of industrial exposure, air pollution and sex, constitutional and occupational factors."

Corcoran Interests Probers

Washington, (AP)—Thomas G. Corcoran, a man to be reckoned with in New Deal days, was invited Thursday to tell House investigators whether he sought to pressure federal power commissioners on behalf of a big gas pipeline company.

The invitation was announced by Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), who set April 14 to question two members of the FPC and "Tommy the Cork" Corcoran, if he agrees to appear before the House legislative oversight subcommittee.

Harris, the subcommittee chairman, told newsman commissioners Arthur Kline and William R. Connole asked to be heard. Both have acknowledged backstage talks with lawyer Corcoran about a multimillion dollar natural gas case. Both have denied there was anything wrong in such conversations.

There has been no comment from Corcoran since the matter frrst arose two weeks ago.

GENEVA DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE—

Russia Proposes Brand New Talks

Geneva (AP)—The Soviet Union proposed Thursday to wipe the slate clean and take the 10-nation disarmament conference back to its starting point.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin claimed such a procedure offered the only escape from the dead end street in which the conference finds itself after almost 4 weeks of work.

He called on delegates to abandon their cross purposes debate on the rival Soviet and Western disarmament plans and negotiate instead on the basis of the U.N. Assembly resolution of last Nov. 20.

A Major Snag

That resolution, which referred the two plans to his conference, was unanimously approved in the United Nations. But there is one obvious snag in using it as a negotiating platform. The North Atlantic powers and the Communist bloc countries disagree on the document's meaning.

Bomb Scares Prompt FBI To Arrest 2

Washington (UPI) — The FBI, stepping up its nationwide drive against airline bomb scares, announced Thursday it had arrested two men on charges of perpetrating such hoaxes.

The men were identified as Fred Cronk Jr., president of a Tulsa, Okla., engineering firm, and James Knox Van Arsdale III, a Sarasota, Fla., advertising executive. Cronk was arrested at Tulsa while Van Arsdale was taken into custody at Sarasota.

Atty. Gen. William Rogers said earlier this week that the government intended to crack down hard on bomb hoaxes.

Cronk was accused of perpetrating a bomb scare aboard a Continental Airlines plane at Denver, Colo. on April 4. He allegedly told a stewardess he believed other passengers had carried a bomb aboard the plane.

House OKs Bill To Nip Arms 'Pull'

Washington (AP)—The House voted Thursday to ban influence peddling by retired military officers. But many members protested the bill is too weak to stop the practice.

Passage by voice vote came after a move to write in criminal penalties was sidetracked on a technicality.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert (D-La), saying the bill has only "baby teeth," promptly introduced a new measure containing criminal penalties, but designed to get around objections raised in the House.

The bill, which went to the Senate, is aimed at highranking military officers who retire and go to work for firms holding defense contracts.

It provides that any officer taking a selling job with such a firm within two years of retirement shall forfeit his retirement pay for two years.

Wisconsin Showing Pleases Humphrey

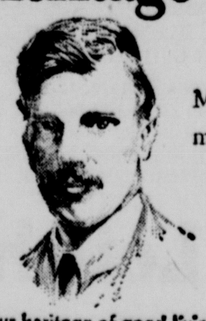

Washington (UPI)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) said Thursday he believed he polled a majority of the regular Democratic vote in the Wisconsin presidential primary even though he lost to Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass).

Humphrey and Gov. Orville Freeman of Minnesota, co-chairman of the senator's national campaign organization, said they felt that Republican cross-over votes caused Humphrey's defeat.

Wisconsin does not register voters by party and permits them to vote in either the Republican or Democratic primary. Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the only entry in the GOP primary, ran third in popular votes in the Tuesday Wisconsin balloting.

In this connection, President Eisenhower told GOP congressmen at a White House breakfast Thursday that Nixon was trailing Kennedy in presidential popularity polls because he has not been getting as much publicity as the Democratic candidate.

IN MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN—

RAMBLER AMERICAN CUSTOM WINS OVER ALL COMPACTS!

Rambler American Custom With Automatic Transmission Delivers 28.35 Miles Per Gallon. Tops All Compacts In Gruelling Test To Prove It's America's Most Gas-Saving Car! Wins Compact Car Class!

RAMBLER'S HISTORY OF VICTORIES IN THE MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN

Rambler scored its fifth victory in ten years in the face of snow-covered mountain passes and choking dust in arid deserts. Here's Rambler's impressive record in past Mobilgas Economy Runs.

1959—25.29 MPG, first in compact class. Best over-all miles per gallon—Rambler American with automatic transmission.
22.96 MPG, second in compact class. Second best over-all miles per gallon—Rambler 6 with automatic transmission.
1956—24.35 MPG, first in class. Best over-all miles per gallon—Rambler 6 with automatic transmission.
1955—27.47 MPG, first in class A. Best over-all miles per gallon—Rambler with automatic transmission.
1951—31.05 MPG, tops with overdrive (6-cylinder cars)—Rambler.

OFFICIAL USAC SANCTION

Rambler wins again!

Under official USAC supervision, a Rambler American Custom scored best gas mileage of all the other compact cars in the 17th running of the Mobilgas Economy Run. All cars were equipped with automatic transmission—and were chosen at random by USAC officials from dealer showrooms or factory assembly lines.

Because of the length of the run—over half a continent from Los Angeles to Minneapolis—Rambler and its competition encountered almost every driving condition that you could meet. No car owner should expect to match in everyday driving the mileage achieved in this test by Rambler or any of the other cars. However, this test provides additional proof that Rambler delivers best gas mileage wherever you drive.

LAFB Lofts 6 Tankers In Speed Test

The Lincoln Air Force Base compressed 6 minutes into 59 seconds in launching 6 KC-97 refueling aircraft Thursday.

Being tested was new take-off procedures to enable the Strategic Air Command to launch retaliatory bombers and support aircraft many times faster than before.

Ranking LAFB officials and newsmen witnessed the test in which the 4-engine tankers roared off the runway at less than 10-second intervals.

A base spokesman said current procedure under alert conditions is for the launching of one aircraft per minute, or less.

In Thursday's test, from the moment the first plane got the command, "Go," only 59 seconds passed until the 6th plane was also airborne.

Base officials were obviously pleased with the success of the test which had been aimed at getting the aircraft off in 90 seconds.

The Lincoln test of the KC-97 tankers was the first though earlier this year B-47 Stratojet bombers had been similarly tested at two other SAC bases.

Termed completely successful, the tests were said to prove SAC's retaliatory forces are capable of taking off at closer intervals, thus increasing the number of nuclear-striking bombers that can become airborne within a 15-minute period.

The latest test was to determine launching capabilities of refueling support aircraft that SAC says must also be saved from desctruction by missile attack against primary bases.

The necessary pre-flight check is acomplished while the aircraft is taxiing, thus enabling the pilot to apply full power for take-off immediately upon reaching the end of the runway.

In the "compressed" take-offs, the first aircraft was just lifting it wheels off as the second was gaining momentum and the third was starting to roll. The 4th, 5th and 6th were moving into position.

SAC flying safety officials in preliminary tests of engine performance characteristics were confident no undue risks were involved in the new technique.

Experienced

A base spokesman said "prop wash" is a major factor in the nose-to-tail take-offs, but all the crews were experienced and thoroughly briefed on the new procedure.

The planes touched-off alternately in shallow left or right turns to avoid the air blast from the plane ahead.

As they gained altitude, they fanned out to proceed on their individual missions.

Base officials said the new procedure is being evaluated for future use by all the SAC force.

The "compression of time" is one of SAC's greatest concerns in maintaining its retaliatory posture as a deterrent for a would-be agressor.

A long line of KC-97s stand poised on Lincoln Air Force Base runways. These were part of the speed take-off exercise conducted at LAFB.

Farm Bureau Officials Call For End To Crop Surpluses

Indianapolis (AP)—Farm Bureau officials of 11 midwestern states Thursday demanded Congress take swift action to abolish crop surpluses which have reached "near-scandal proportions."

President Charles B. Shuman of the American Farm Bureau Federation said farmers today are being threatened "by the same public attitude that has been aroused by certain labor practices."

A third of the 9 billion dollars in government-held farm surplus is wheat, Shuman said, and there are only 4 ways to get rid of it—eat it, feed it, export it and store it.

"We've about reached the end of the rope in storing it," he said. "We're eating about all we can eat, we're forcing all we can into exports.

"The only alternative is to find a way to bring about an adjustment in production.'

Shuman said Congress will feel Farm Bureau pressure within the next month or two to adopt a wheat program which would:

Stop Controls

1. Eliminate all government controls on wheat production and marketing.

2. Base the 1961 wheat support price on the corn support level.

3. Prohibit the government from selling stored wheat at less than 150% of the support price, plus carrying charges.

4. Expand the soil bank program to idle more farm acreage.

NU To Open Stage 2 Bids On New Hall

The University of Nebraska will open bids on stage two of the remodeling of Nebraska Hall, the former Elgin building, Friday at 2 p.m., Business Manager Carl Donaldson announced Thursday.

The work, which will amount to approximately $500,000, will involve remodeling the basement and east one-third of the first and second floors.

The bids will be submitted to the Board of Regents for approval next Wednesday, he said. Construction will begin immediately and completion is expected early this fall.

The basement of Nebraska Hall will house the printing and duplicating departments, now housed in the West Stadium. The basement also will provide storage and warehouse facilities.

The Nebraska Conservation and Survey Division, now located in the old Nebraska Hall, will be housed in the remodeled first-floor area. The east one-third of the second floor will be used for the University Press and new Computer Center.

Authority Praises NU State Museum

The University of Nebraska State Museum has received high praise from an official of the American Association of Museums.

Carl A. Guthe, a research associate of the national organization, in a magazine article in the Museum News, cited the University's museum as a leader in the approach to a "well rounded" program.

Guthe, who has visited more than 700 museums in his research during the past 10 dergraduates. The Nebraska pleased that Nebraska's museum was not only excellent from the standpoint of "show," but that its leaders' program was particularly well suited for teaching undergraduates. The Nebrsska Museum was one of only 3 cited by Guthe.

Dr. C. Bertrand Schultz of Lincoln is the University of Nebraska's museum director.

The Human Touch

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Veterans' groups and programs are often controversial — a fact which stems from their comparative selectivity. Just as farm interests are fought by some groups, management fought by labor and so forth, we often find the veterans and their organizations at odds now and then with other interests.

Nor are the veterans always right. As any other group will do from time to time, the organizations supporting and working for the veterans can become too concerned with their own welfare.

Question Of Rewards

But this is a common and expected thing for any special interest group since it is in existence for the express purpose of promoting its own cause. Part of the problem experienced by any movement in behalf of veterans is a psychological one. It is a psychology which sometimes bothers the veteran himself as well as those outside of this large group of Americans. This conflict centers around the question of rewards or special consideration for what is considered the supreme act of loyalty for one's country.

Constantly boiling beneath the surface of any Veterans Administration program is the question of rewards for a service which should be given voluntarily and with no expectation of future special consideration. Many veterans and non-veterans alike can be heard to say from time to time that service to their country is something for which they neither ask nor want any special favors.

There is, however, an aspect of service to one's country which merits a certain amount of consideration. Just as the individual who serves may not want any special consideration, so also he should not be punished. If he is to be no better off for his sacrifice of time, and perhaps of life, then he is surely expected to be no worse off.

In general, the VA programs are designed to compensate the veteran for the loss in working years, in education or some other human resource realized as a result of service to his country. These programs are an effort to help the veterans reach at a certain age approximately the same plateau they would have achieved had they devoted their service years to the pursuit of civilian objectives.

The programs do not necessarily make the veteran any better off but do attempt to compensate him for his loss. Perhaps this, too, you cannot find in your conscience to accept and it is at this point that we might turn to the words of Sumner W. Whittier, administrator of Veterans Affairs in Washington, D.C. "Most important of all," said the administrator in discussing VA trends, "we find a trend for a greater degree of human consideration in VA. Our end product is not paper; it is people. This we never forget."

Carrying on with this analysis, he pointed out that "it is the human element that counts; in fact, there is no other reason for the existence of the VA than to serve our fellow man. May the human relationship remain strong all the days and years to come; for its strength is not only the strength of the VA, the strength of the veteran, but the strength of America."

In those few words you should be able to find the kind of an approach to veterans affairs which will permit you to accept them for their true value. You should be able to find, in fact, a line of reasoning which permits you to consider many of today's problems in a much more logical and rational manner.

Your point of view should be couched in the humanizing realization of the value of life itself. You should stop in your consideration of any program or problem to place it first of all in proper perspective. If your first thought is of who will be the beneficiary or what is in the plan for you, then you can be assured that your contribution to whatever it is will not be on the constructive side. You will find discontent and dissatisfaction when your thoughts turn automatically to the question of what has been done to merit this or that special consideration.

The Proper View

In connection with the words spoken by Mr. Whittier, it is important that you realize that a veteran is not just somebody who belongs to an organization, sometimes wears an unusual looking hat and marches in patriotic affairs. He may be this but more than that, he is a human being—a creature with heart, mind, soul and dreams. He is first of all your fellow man and this alone should be enough.

Sen. Kennedy Is Growing In Stature

WASHINGTON — The most important factor to watch in any young man who has traveled fast in politics is stability. Young men who travel fast toward the great goal of president are inclined to be opportunistic. They cut corners to achieve their goal. They need the stability that comes with age.

Therefore, in gauging Jack Kennedy, 42-year-old candidate for president, you have to scrutinize not his profile or his popularity. You have to study his growth pattern. You have to trace the line of his maturity, see which direction it's leading and in what areas it is hardening.

If you trace the Kennedy growth line you will find that in the past Jack has wanted to please both sides. He has straddled. This is not unusual in a young politician. It's especially understandable when a young senator has been pushed forward both as a boy and as a public servant by an aggressive, wealthy father who has become an economist.

When young senator Kennedy voted with the Republicans some years ago to restrict one of Roosevelt's prize projects, the Tenessee Valley Authority, Senate Democrats asked him why. Jack was frank. "I guess I've been listening to father's friends in Palm Beach," he said.

Again when the frequently criticized Americans for Democratic Action gave Kennedy a high liberal rating, he squirmed over being put in the same category as Senators Douglas, Ill.; Morse, Ore., and Humphrey, Minn. This was good politics in the north but not in the south. He was especially worried when the Charleston, S.C., News and Courier editorialized on his liberal record. He even took the trouble to write this well-known conservative paper as follows:

"When I secured a copy of this voting record, I found that my high score was not particularly radical. In fact . . . I achieved the same rating as Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson, President Pro Tem Carl Hayden, and such other senators as Kerr, Symington, Wiley, Green, O'Mahoney, Mansfield, Magnuson, Clements and Langer."

However, what you have to watch in a young politician is his growth line. And Kennedy's growth line is good. It has become firm and courageous. The vacillations have been ironed out. And it has consistently followed a left-of-center direction.

You feel this coming through when you talk with him. There's a quiet determination, a depth of understanding which was not in the same Jack Kennedy a few years ago.

Critical senators who watched Kennedy pilot the intricate, highly controversial labor bill through the Senate last year knew that they were watching a young man who had come into his own.

And this writer, who has watched many would-be presidents come and go, is convinced that Senator Kennedy, if he attains the great goal of the White House, would not be politically influenced by either his father or his church.

CHILDREN OF THE BIBLE

Boy With Loaves And Fishes

Very often the Bible does not tell us the names of persons who, at some important moment in the unfolding of God's plan for men, had an important part to play.

This lad who had five barley loaves and two fishes is one of these. No doubt his mother had sent him with the food to the market-place to sell it. Or it may have been intended for a group of relatives and friends who were coming to Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover.

But on his way, the boy saw a huge crowd of people following a Man they called the Nazarene. Curious, and because he too was attracted by the beauty and light of the Man's eyes, the lad joined the multitude and followed Jesus.

The Master crossed the Sea of Galilee to the opposite shore. But the people, eager to hear more of His words, and hoping He would work some miracle, had themselves ferried across in boats.

There Jesus stood on a green hilltop and spoke to them of the Truth, for which He had come into the world to bear witness.

As mealtime approached and the throng made no move to disperse, Jesus turned to the disciple Philip and asked:

"Whence shall we buy bread that these may eat?"

Jesus asked this question merely to test Philip's response to Him. The Master knew what He would do.

Philip began to make rapid calculations. "Two hundred pennyworth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little." It was then that Andrew brought forward the lad with his five loaves and two fishes.

Jesus smiled at the lad, took the basket, and had His disciples bid the people sit down. "And when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down; and likewise of the fishes as much as they would."

After the huge crowd had eaten their fill, Jesus asked the disciples to "gather up the fragments that remain." The remains of the meal filled twelve baskets! The lad turned and raced toward home to tell his mother what had happened.

Another Medical Aid Bill

The House Ways and Means committee made short work of the Forand bill for federal medical insurance for those over 65. But it was less effective in demolishing the subject as an issue.

This week seven Republican senators sponsored a new bill having the same end in view, but approaching it in a different manner. Their measure paralleled the proposals of Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Flemming, but they were doubtful that it would receive presidential endorsement.

The new measure would work on a payroll deduction basis with the federal governments and states sharing the cost. Modest deductions prior to age 65 ranging from $6 a year for low income earners to a maximum of $13 a year as a top limit would provide the elderly patients 60 days of hospital care, surgery in or out of the hospital, medical care in the hospital, visits to doctor's office, laboratory tests and x-rays. Federal support of the plan would range from one third to three fourths the cost depending upon the state's wealth.

The bill provides for underwriting of the medical aid program by private insurance companies where risks can be reconciled with actuarial fact. This is a feature that could soften the opposition to the aid program where federal competition with private enterprise is a principal objection.

It is hard to speculate on the fate of the measure, but the fact that it was offered by Republican senators demonstrates that the question crosses party lines and is one of considerable tenacity. There is no question that those who have ceased to earn are finding themselves priced out of ordinary medical welfare and if those who are not by some pre-retirement assessment prepared for care in the terminal period of their lives, the costs of direct relief, to which the government is already obligated, will mount.

Home Town Ambassadors

The so-called big news about agriculture these days is pretty bleak. The farmer's income keeps slipping downward while his expenses mount and this familiar cost-price squeeze has many a farmer hanging by a pretty thin thread. These things are real, of course, but there is another element of the farm situation which is as encouraging as these other things are discouraging.

This is the human element and you can see it at its finest right now in Lincoln where some 2,500 Future Farmers of America are gathered at the University of Nebraska Ag College campus for a three-day adventure. Officially it is called a convention but this seems a little too cut and dried for these youthful people from Nebraska's rural areas.

They are so full of enthusiasm, hope and determination that you know farming to them is something more than a business. Already they are on their way to economic independence — armed with years of carefully programmed training and valuable work projects. Some of the top FFA boys can boast of an average high school grade of 87 and an annual work project income —from grain and livestock operations of their own—of $2,610.

These young people know what they want out of life and have set out to get it. You will find them in the years ahead on the farms and in the classrooms of universities — giving outstanding performance at every challenge. You would have to look a long time and then would probably never find a smart aleck in this group of boys, or a lad who lacked in consideration for others.

They are fine young men in a worthwhile and constructive organization. They are ambassadors of good will for their home towns and their example provides us with confidence in the future of agriculture. When the farm situation gets to looking pretty bad, give a thought to the young farmers coming on and you may be greatly encouraged.

Finding New Revenue

Minnesota's well developed water and recreation facilities puts it in the front rank in the eyes of sporting goods manufacturers. Each year at this time the Minneapolis sportsman's show is a major league event, and attracts, as well as many thousands of sports lovers, the top figures of the National Sporting Goods Association.

One of the latter, G. Marvin Schutt, of Chicago, an association director, this year gave out some thought-provoking statistics. He said Americans will spend $2.25 billion this year on sporting equipment. Minnesota will sell $40 million of it. Wisconsin will sell $50 million. And every one in the business can expect another five per cent increase in sporting goods volume.

These figures are for equipment alone. They do not include incidental spending for accommodations, travel, meals, taxes and whatever else goes in to make a summer fishing trip interesting. The latter outlay estimated most reasonably should exceed $6 billion for the nation.

What should attract the eye of Nebraska is the immensity of the recreation business in a state which has abundant water facilities and which has made something of them. Nebraska cannot duplicate in number and size the beautiful wooded Minnesota lakes. It would be many years before it could seriously challenge either Minnesota or Wisconsin in water recreation.

But in the past two or three decades it has become an important water state, through conservation and flood control. And in the calculable future eastern Nebraska will add much of its scenic beauty to flood control reservoirs. The state, in short, has the fixings to become a recreation mecca both for the region and for the cross country trade.

The beauty of developed recreation sites is of two fold benefit. It makes a nearby delightful vacation land for Nebraskans. It adds substantially to the state's earnings and each season injects new money into the state's economic stream.

Candidates Wished More Decisiveness

MILWAUKEE — The Wisconsin primary outcome leaves the political picture much the same, but for all the principal figures in it, this is not good enough.

Sen. John Kennedy performed handsomely so far from home, but he did not stampede the voters in a manner sufficient to impress the professional Democratic politicians doubtful of his appeal in a general election.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey proved that as a campaigner he has few peers. But the popular voting showed him still very much an underdog, while the lineup of districts emphasized that he still stands in the shadow of Adlai Stevenson.

Vice President Richard Nixon's poor showing is ominous for him and the Republican party. Their strategy of no-contest for the nomination has backfired, and advance reports that he lacks personal appeal even for Republicans were supported. The farm revolt against the Eisenhower-Benson policies was again proved real. In this once heavily Republican state, it continues to lead to a realignment of the parties. Nationally, the proponents of drafting Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will be encouraged.

The flaw of religious bigotry appeared on both sides of the Democratic campaign, and the unhappy prospect is that no amount of preaching will make it go away. As an otherwise ebullient Senator Humphrey remarked soberly in the early morning hours Wednesday, people are people.

The religious issue is a potential time bomb in the otherwise smoothly running Democratic machinery. How the party handles it will be a part of the 1960 story.

☆ ☆ ☆

It was transcended in some parts of Wisconsin, and Kennedy emphasized this effectively. But unlike some of his ardent backers, he is realistic. He must go next into West Virginia, where his Catholic co-religionists are few and his private advices tell him that the formidable figure of Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas is lying in wait for him.

Senators have every occasion to learn that the Southerners have ways of handling their political problems against which Kennedy efficiency and Humphrey warmth can be made to seem merely amateurish. Humphrey is ahead in advance reports from West Virginia, but both he and Kennedy believe that the Senate majority leader is the enemy in them thar hills.

The results of the 1960 Heart Fund Drive are nearly complete. Our goal for this year in Lancaster County was $25.400. At this time, we have collected $26,-895.87 in the county. Our goal was reached without the benefit of any special gifts, so this accomplishment required extra effort from many people.

It is not possible to thank each individual personally, but it is hoped that this letter will in a small way convey our sincere thanks and appreciation for the contribution The Lincoln Star has made toward the attainment of our goal. It is through such voluntary efforts that this nation will continue to be the greatest country on earth.

More Mud

Lincoln, Neb.

For well over two weeks, those of us living on Normal Blvd. between about 4200 and 48th Street have been unable to reach our homes except on foot through seas of mud. Fortunately we have had no fires or other emergencies requiring the presence of an emergency vehicle.

On two occasions the road has become almost dry enough for travel, only to be swamped in mud after each of the last two rains because the water could not run off due to knee-deep ruts. We cannot help but feel that had the road been graded to fill these ruts, the two recent rains would have drained mostly into the ditches instead of standing for days and days. Once again this road is almost passable, but unless it is graded before the next rain, we will have another week of impassable mud. Since a rain approximately once a week is not at all unusual for spring, it is possible we may never be able to use our road until an extended dry spell is on us. Unfortunately, this is not a side road that can be avoided. It is the only access to our homes.

Some time ago a paving petition was circulated and was signed by a majority of the residents along the four-block stretch covered by the petition. We recall reading an editorial in The Star at the time this petition was before the City Council. We are wondering what was the final outcome of this petition.

MUDDY RESIDENT

Editor's Note: This is one of the most complicated paving problems the city has faced for some time. Briefly, the petition for paving covers the approximate two blocks on Normal Blvd. from 42nd east to what would be So. Cotner, if extended. However, this would be an isolated piece of paving in that the paving between 42nd and 40th is only 13 feet wide and there is no paving east of the So. Cotner intersection with Normal. The city has a policy against installation of such isolated paving. Also, the paving petitioned for is looked upon unfavorably by some city officials who believe it should be of an arterial rather than a residential width. However, the City Council has not decided this case yet and is not expected to until a conference has been held between city officials and property owners involved.

The Choice

Howells, Neb.

The sample ballots will soon be available and every citizen should procure a set and then pick out the better principles and the better man, at least those faithful to their trust.

Real people's men are more scarce than need be. The candidates for the party conventions are of the mediocre strata, politically fatigued or worse. The candidates for the high offices are about as uninspiring as could be, certainly untrained or inured against representing us before the world.

Candidate Conrad is a man who is presently overstepping his prerogatives. And he is still involved in the colossal Interstate Highway scandal. That piece of highway boon-doggling should be stopped at once.

Curtis, the candidate, is over-due for a fall. He overreached himself this time. He has the gall to tell us that he, the true union fellowship, was the bonafide friend of labor. Yet he never raised a finger when with wide unemployment, other states gave extended unemployment benefits. And he never departed from his his chair when Lincoln's permanent damaging lay-offs occured. He turned his back on increasing the minimum wage. He pooh-poohed when asked by our older citizens to back the Forand Bill, said they wanted "socialism." Mr. Curtis's double-talk will soon be judged by a quarter million.

Farm Issue

Blair, Neb.

It is right and proper that Sen. H. Humphrey of Minnesota enlighten the electorate of Wisconsin on Sen. Kennedy's past voting record on the important farm question. It is true that Mr. Kennedy has voted right down the line with the Eisenhower-Benson forces. If Mr. Kennedy has changed his viewpoint on the solution of the farm question, he should so state.

Personally, and based on the voting records of the admitted candidates for the Democratic nomination for president, I would be happy to accept Mr. Kennedy as the next president of this nation, but I would prefer Sen. Symington.

The overriding issue in Nebraska must be the farm problem. It is too late for Sen. Curtis to offer help to the Nebraska farm. He hasn't shown that he was the least bit interested in the farmer until this election year.

Underground

Lincoln, Neb.

The siren has sounded its warning,
And bombing soon will begin.
My bombproof, soundproof shelter
Is filled with my kith and kin.
We'll be safe from guided missiles;
We'll be deaf to atomic din;
And though we fall out with Russia
No fallout can here fall in.

So we wait and we hope and wonder
Which side, if either, can win.
And what will be left to persuade us
To return to a world of sin.
Will chaos and havoc confine us
In this subterranean bin
Until some archaeologist finds us
Each wearing his skeletal grin?

Visiting Critic Featured At Annual Arts Festival

A special addition to this year's University of Nebraska Fine Arts Festival is Dr. Charles Getchell from the University of Mississippi.

Dr. Getchell is guest critic for the Festival's one-act play presentations in the speech division. From the 43 play casts which requested entry, 18 were chosen for participation.

Pre-registration totals for the 14th Annual Fine Arts Festival were 1,020 with 100 representative directors. Nebraska high school students in the 10th, 11th and 12th grades are permitted to enter any one of 3 divisions of art, music, or speech.

The speech division in the Festival includes such topics as oral interpretation of prose literature, oral reading of drama, interpretative public address, original public address, extemporaneous speaking, poetry reading, radio and television news commentary, discussion and one-act play presentations.

Sweepstake

Coveted award is the Sweepstakes Award which is presented to Class A and B participating schools with the highest accumulation of ratings. Trophies are awarded for the best one-act plays.

Following registration entrants in the art division began competition in media such as water color, monotype, chalk, and drawings. The students will also be given the opportunity to see demonstrations by university staff members.

Members of the faculty will offer suggestions and criticisms of the student's work, but no ratings will be given.

Competition in the music division includes such categories as voice, band instruments, orchestra instruments, and piano or organ.

Band Instructor Named At Pius X

Phil Murphy has been appointed band instructor at Pius X High School, according to an announcement made by Fr. B. E. Kalin, Superintendent.

Murphy, who will be the first man to hold this position, is a graduate of Wayne State Teachers College, and received his master's degree from the University of Nebraska. He taught 4 years at Wymore and is presently with the York Public School System.

Beats 2nd Tax Count

New York (AP)—The government's income tax case against Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. (D-NY) was further whittled down Thursday, leaving only a single count of the indictment upon which he is being tried still standing.

Powell

The maximum penalty which conviction could bring the Negro congressman from Harlem is a 5-year prison term and a $10,000 fine—in contrast with the 15 year term and $30,000 fine he faced originally.

Federal Judge Frederick Bryan threw out the second of 3 charges against Powell. He declined, however, to go along with the defense request to dismiss the entire case.

Beatnik Faculty Members Add Zest To 'Joy Night'

By Mary Blake

Take a lot of talent, hard work, and add imagination, and you come up with Lincoln High School's Joy Night, presented this year April 7-9.

"Fantasia" is the theme, and a fantasy it is, from beatnik faculty members to a fairy-like ballerina.

The scenery was a wonderland of white and silver, with wire butterflies suspended from the ceiling, angel hair, and white fish net all adding their part.

One of the high points of the variety show was the number "I Ain't Got No Body." Fluorescent gloves and bobby sox on 12 black-garbed girls gave an eerie sense of hands and feet flying through the air.

Helen Anderson, Lincoln High junior, danced the famous "Swan" ballet presentation.

The faculty act, always a top secret until the night of the performance, was a riotous success.

The girls glee was a sea of pastels; and 8 dancers in dresses of lavender, pink, blue, yellow, green, salmon, gold and orange performed with the 11th-grade group.

Perhaps the funniest act of the night was a group of 21 boys who presented 3 shows dressed as girls. Ballet, tap and can-can dances were presented by the costumed males.

In the "Mechanized Magic" number, a seeress, Madam Zonga, turned a school girl into a movie star, made it possible for 4 girls afraid of water to be able to swim, but failed when she tried to turn a girl into a boy.

A jazz group of 4 boys who called themselves "-34 Degrees" (in other words, real cool) presented several good between-acts numbers.

The whole presentation showed a polish not usually found in a high school group and was remarkable for the talent presented.

'Little Song' Of Boy, 8, Emerges As Big Work

Philadelphia (AP)—Just after Christmas, 8-year-old Kenneth Brown edged up to his school principal and asked for some music paper.

"I want to write a little song," he told Samuel Judelsohn, his big brown eyes luminous, his face grave.

Principal Judelsohn complied. The boy went on his creative way.

Although the principal knew that Kenny dabbled in music, he was unprepared for what followed.

When Kenny finished, he hadn't just a little song, but an ambitious work called "An Israeli Rhapsody." His parents and elder brother were moved to tears of admiration. His piano teacher was rhapsodic herself. The work was entered in a competition open to boys and girls of the area. William Smith, assistant conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, chose Kenny's composition as the best and sat down to help the boy with the orchestration.

On Saturday "An Israeli Rhapsody" will have its premiere performance by the Philadelphia Orchestra, the feature of the annual children's concert at the Academy of Music.

The rhapsody is described as strange, brooding, highly original, emotionally way beyond what might be expected even of most adult hopefuls. It ends in a mood of sadness.

Dow announces a major  automotive development

THE WORLD'S FIRST YEAR 'ROUND COOLING SYSTEM FLUID

DOWGARD*

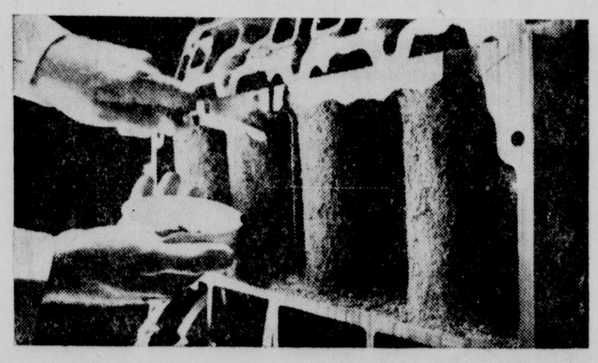

Fill your radiator now with this scientific formulation which eliminates the need to add water in summer, antifreeze in winter. Totally new protection against rust, corrosion, freezing and overheating. One full fill protects your cooling system for 12 full months.

No More seasonal flushing and draining. No more seasonal need to add antifreeze, rust inhibitors or even ordinary water. DOWGARD ends these worries and inconveniences while giving your car the scientific protection it deserves!

DOWGARD cooling system fluid defeats your radiator's natural enemy—ordinary water—which attacks metal, causes rust, corrosion and clogging. No matter how carefully you lubricate, tune up and check transmission, brakes, tires and wheel balance, you can still be in trouble if rust and corrosion go unchecked in your radiator!

DOWGARD cooling system fluid stops this damage. Why? It is a blend of a completely new combination of protective chemicals and specially treated de-ionized water. This formulation can't rust or corrode for one full year's service. DOWGARD protects against freezing and overheating. Your cooling system is safe from 40°F. below to 240°F. above zero while DOWGARD is on duty.

Many years of careful research resulted in DOWGARD. Dow cooling system specialists have worked continually with major automotive and oil companies. In laboratories—one near Detroit, the world's car capital—they employed painstaking methods to develop the only coolant that gives a car complete protection.

Tests under tougher-than-usual driving conditions backed up the laboratory results with convincing proof that DOWGARD met the highest possible standards!

Protection and convenience are the principal features of DOWGARD, but research indicates that it also maintains better heat transfer which affects heater-defroster action and engine operation. Especially beneficial in all air-conditioned cars, DOWGARD is certain to strengthen any car's resale value.

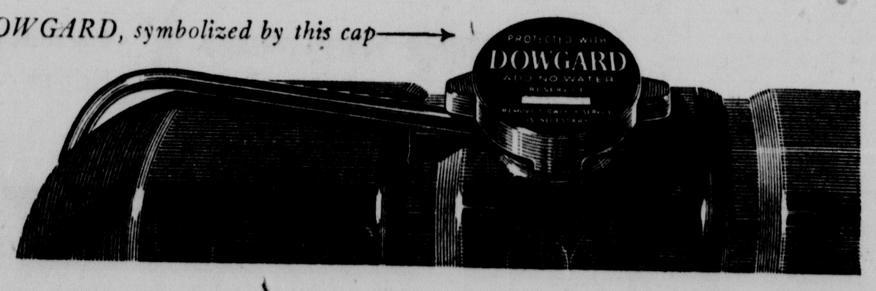

Sold only through service dealers, DOWGARD gives you the equivalent of a sealed cooling system for one full year. The serviceman will drain out the sources of trouble, service the system and refill with the finest cooling system fluid in the world. Then he'll place a special blue cap on your radiator which shows the date when your cooling system should be reserviced.

DOWGARD saves you money. Its cost depends on the cooling system capacity of your car. For most American cars the suggested installation cost ranges from $8 to $12. For some smaller cars, the cost would be as little as $4.50. Your service dealer will give you the exact price for your car. Remember that a premium fill of DOWGARD cooling system fluid gives complete protection for 12 months. You'll save in the long run. Get DOWGARD now and forget car problems that go with summer heat, variable autumn temperatures and winter cold!

'Loving Couple,' Says Justice Of Newlyweds

Hendersonville, N.C. (AP)—"I just hope that he is the kind of husband I think she deserves," said the justice of the peace who married heiress Gamble Benedict and Romanian-born Andre Porumbeanu.

"They were a beautiful, loving couple," the 68-year-old justice, Fletcher Roberts,

Andre

Gamble

added, "very much ahold of themselves and acting as sanely as any two I ever united."

Gamble, 19-year-old heiress of her mother's $1½-million estate and presumably in line for her grandmother's multi-million-dollar Remington typewriter fortune, defied a court order and family objections to marry Porumbeanu, 35.

On The Move

Their publicized romance led them to Europe on a small oil tanker last December, along the boulevards of Paris, into the courts of New York where she was declared a wayward minor, and to the tobacco town of Dillon, S.C.

Their flight to wed ended about 6 p.m. Wednesday near Hendersonville, beside a small lake on the lawn of a hunting lodge, cupped in the Blue Ridge Mountains. There the runaway heiress and the ex-chauffeur in a borrowed shirt exchanged the marriage vows Magistrate Peter Horn of Brooklyn had said they could not share until she became 21.

"It was an entirely legal marriage under the laws of North Carolina," said Roberts.

In The Clear

The clerk of Magistrate Horn's court said the court could move against the couple if they return to New York, but the marriage was not an extraditable offense.

Gamble and Porumbeanu, accompanied by a magazine reporter and a photographer, arrived quietly in Hendersonville, dodging the publicity surrounding their futile efforts to get a marriage license at Dillon, S.C. Within an hour and a half of their license application, they were married.

Then they disappeared for a honeymoon.

Loans To NU Students Expected To Rise 60%

Student loans at the University of Nebraska are expected to exceed the $300,000 mark this school year, or 60 per cent more than last year, according to W. C. Harper, director of the loan program.

He said that University Students have borrowed $276,997 to date, with three months still to go in the school year.

Of this amount, $166,987 has been borrowed from permanent University student loan funds held in trust by the Board of Regents and University Foundation, he reported. Another $110,010 has been borrowed from National Defense loan funds.

Mr. Harper said that between 800 and 1,000 students are assisted with college expenses each year. "This assistance has made it possible for several hundred worthy students to complete their college education," he added.

ForeignLanguage Courses Planned For Grade School

Holdrege (AP) — A one-year test of teaching a foreign language in the grades of Holdrege schools next year has been approved by the Board of Education.

Instruction will be in Spanish. The board has not decided in which grade the start will be made but the first year instruction may be as early as the third grade.

If the plan is carried out according to tentative arrangements the language would be taught in all grades, from the third into high school.

54 Indicted In Exposure Of Postal Exam Cheating

New York (AP)—Cheating on examinations has apparently spread to the U.S. postal service.

A sharp-eyed examiner, looking over job test papers, noticed the handwriting didn't match on one applicant's exams.

His vigilance led to a full scale inquiry which ended in the government's announcement it had smashed a postal job examination racket with the indictment of 54 persons.

Five of the principal defendants—all former postal employes—were accused of fraudulently taking tests for other persons. Letter carrier and clerk jobs were involved.

Postal inspectors and the Civil Service Commission sifted 44,000 test papers submitted in 1957 and 1958. They accused one former postal employe, Max T. Salazar of the Bronx, of taking proxy tests for 13 job applicants.

Each defendant was charged with violation of the federal false statement statute and could—if convicted—receive a maximum 5-year sentence and a fine of $10,000 on each count.

Recently it was disclosed a number of college students in different parts of the nation had paid experts to take their tests and write theses for them.

WORLD-FAMED RUSS BALLET STAR RETIRES

Moscow (UPI)—Galina Ulanova, considered by many to be the best ballerina in the world, retired from the ballet last week, it was revealed Thursday.

The star, who at the age of 50 is still considered without peer, performed in the United States last year while she was on a world tour. She was warmly received at all of her performances.

For the last decade it has been rumored that she was retiring, but it was not until April 1 that she decided finally to hang up her slippers for good.

Two Towns Seek Federal Aid For Development Use

Kearney and Columbus are the first two Nebraska cities to apply for federal funds to assist them in planning future development, Lee G. Rising, assistant chief of the Nebraska Resources Division, said Thursday.

Under the Federal Housing Act of 1954, cities may receive federal funds to pay 50 % of the cost of studies by community planning consultants.

The studies must include streets, housing, zoning, educational and hospital facilities and all other facets of community development.

Applications from cities of under 25,000 population must be channeled through the state to the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency. It is the state which contracts with the private consulting firms.

Officers Elected By Rehab Center

Mrs. Jack Stone has been elected president of the Lincoln Rehabilitation Center board. She succeeds Edwin F. Dosek.

Mrs. Stone

Other newly-elected officers are Howard Chapin, vice president; Dr. LeRoy Laase, secretary, and Jack Trombla, treasurer.

Mrs. Harry Simon was appointed chairman of a committee to study space needs for the center. Other committee members are Chapin, Mrs. E. Rose Martin and John Love.

A total of $1,600 was received from outstate chapters of the Nebraska Crippled Children's Society, in response to a plea to help the Rehabilitation Center's financial problems issued by Dr. Laase, according to Dwight Toedter, director.

Educational Film Service To Provide 'Worlds Of Wonder'

A new educational film service, inaugurated by the Nebraska Public Library Commission, will make the slogan of National Library Week this week, "Open Wonderful New Worlds", a reality.

The new project is the direct result of an increasing demand for adult films of an educational nature for use by local organizations and groups, according to Miss Louise Nixon of Lincoln, executive secretary of the commission.

"By means of this new service," Miss Nixon said, "program chairmen and members of organizations can now plan a variety of programs using these films to enrich the books and other readings that libraries have always supplied."

Supplement

The project, which is made possible by firms from the Library Services Act, is a supplement to the commission's state-wide book and reference service, Miss Nixon said.

Each of the 13 participating libraries will receive 5 films each month to keep in the library and to check out for 24-hour periods to groups and organizations in the community.

Films include the following topics: American scene; art; communication art; economic problem; safety; international understanding; literature and creative expression; music; natural resources; natural science; physical science; politics and government; U. S. history; famous personalities and family life.

Stanton Delaplane's POSTCARD

"April brings the primrose sweet,

Scatters daisies at our feet."

☆ ☆ ☆

A small chunk of unexpected money dropped on me the other day. (It didn't hurt a bit. Just a few bruises.)

I put a flower in my buttonhole and went right out and bought a new car. The last of the Big-Time Spenders.

☆ ☆ ☆

One thing I have found about holding on to money, it simply gets you a lot of grief.

If you have so much as a savings account, people tell you what to do with it.

"There's this plan, see? Like you invest in blue chips only THIS you get DOUBLE your money."

Or they say: "I had my money in a bank in 1929." And they give you a sorrowful, knowing look.

Or they say:"It's all right to save. But how do you know what the dollar will be worth a couple of years from now? Look what's happened in the last five years."

I did not put the money in the village jug. I went down and bought a big, long, bright, beautiful car. Convertible.

☆ ☆ ☆

Oh, me, oh my, dear! The call of the open road in April.

The last car I bought (for cash, that is) cost me $35. That is how long it is since I was solvent enough to make cash deals.

It was a Model-T—secondhand, naturally. I thought all Model-T Fords were secondhand because I never had a new one.

I got this $35 secondhand car for cash and I paid in gold. I had just signed off a ship that paid off in gold coin.

I gave the man two $20 gold pieces. He gave me back five silver dollars.

I drove that car right out of the lot. Twenty miles down the road the radiator cap blew off from steam pressure and a back tire went flat.

☆ ☆ ☆

I drove that Model-T for a hundred miles. It took me a day and a half. But by the time I got there, the car was in perfect working order.

It should have been. I rebuilt it en route.

I put in a new bearing—the front bearing always went out sometimes on a Model-T. (It could be replaced temporarily with a thick piece of bacon rind if you had to.)

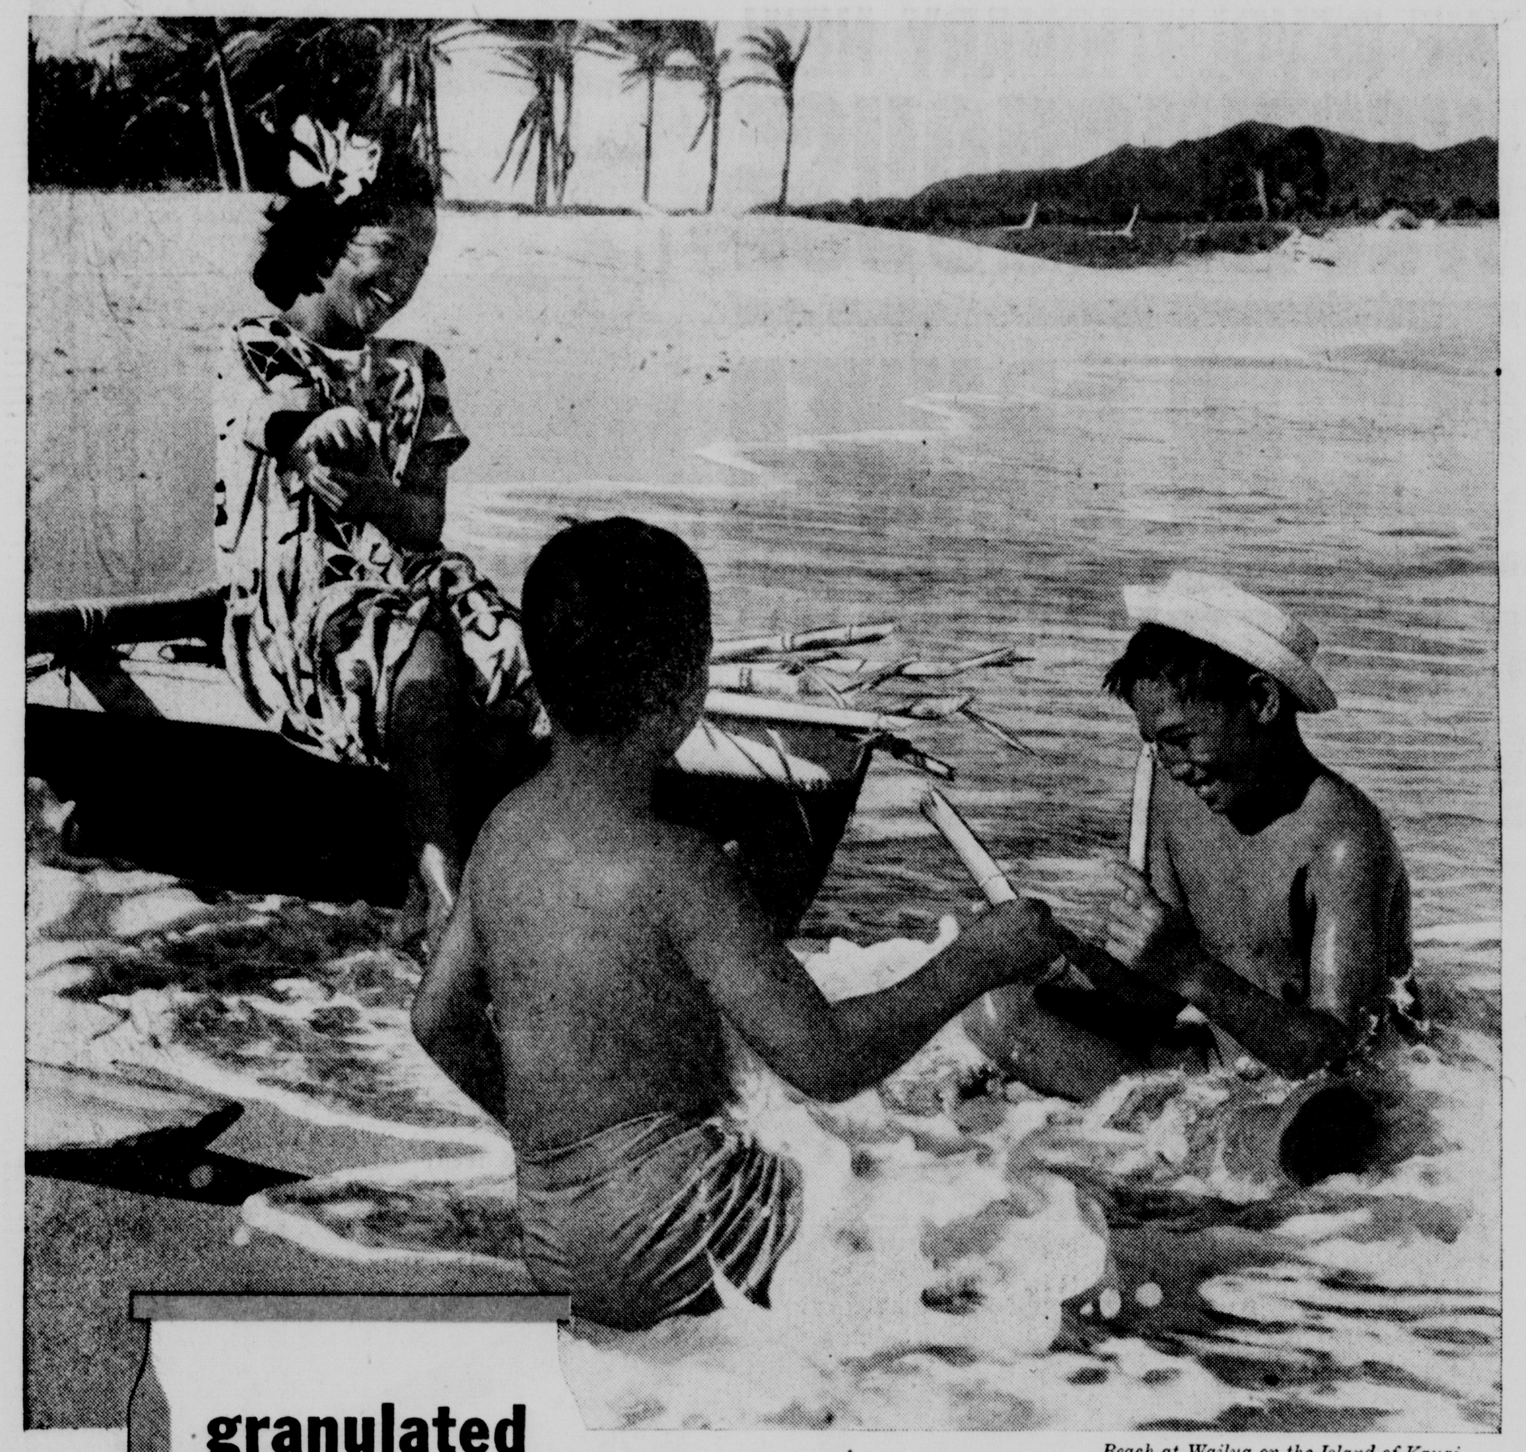

I put in a new needle valve in the carburetor. I tinkered with the fan belt which was loose as a child's tooth. I didn't care. It was MY car.

Later years I saved my money in the approved fashion. I financed my cars. They did not belong to me. They belonged to the bank. And I quit repairing them with the old affection. I should fix somebody else's car.

De Gaulle Given An Ovation

London (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle won the crowning ovation of his triumphant visit to Britain with a call for an end to the nuclear arms race.

France, he said, desires above all that nuclear weapons be destroyed and the "vehicles of death" that carry them be placed under surveillance. And she believes that East and West can live in peace together.

De Gaulle's speech combined the stuff of history with oratory perhaps unmatched since Winston Churchill roused the free world to action 20 years ago. Churchill, 85 and feeble now, was there to honor his wartime ally.

De Gaulle, tall and vigorous in sober morning dress, stood before a silk covered throne on the gray stone steps that fill one end of Westminster Hall. Scarlet-robed Beef Eaters from the Tower of London flanked him as an honor guard. A fanfare from trumpeters in medieval dress introduced his speech.

The soldier-president spoke with hardly a glance at his notes for 30 minutes. By an oratorical tour de force he contrived to end just as the 900-year-old hall vibrated with the last stroke of noon from the great bell of Big Ben.

The audience — members of both houses of Britain's Parliament — sat a moment in silence as though stunned. Then they burst into a roar of applause that lasted a full 4 minutes.

"France would for her part be very happy to give up the tests and the capital expenditure she has undertaken in order to provide herself with the means possessed by others, as soon as these others cease to have them available," he said.

Ike Sees Nixon's Popular Slip

Washington (UPI)—President Eisenhower Thursday attributed Vice President Nixon's slump in some presidential popularity polls to the fact that Nixon isn't getting as much publicity as his Democratic rivals.

The President's remarks, made at a breakfast with 19 members of the House Republican policy committee, were relayed to reporters by a half dozen of those present.

They said the President described Nixon's showing in the polls as only a temporary handicap, however. Eisenhower was quoted as saying it will disappear once Nixon gets the Republican presidential nomination and is free to express his own views.

Nixon now is trailing Sen. John F. Kennedy after having led the Massachusetts Democrat for some time.

The Republicans said the President made 3 points: Nixon is not yet the official GOP candidate; he is unopposed for the nomination; and he is a member of the Eisenhower administration.

One Republican said the President made the point that the more a person's name is mentioned by newspapers, magazines and radio and TV, the better showing he will make in a public opinion poll.

Another Republican said the President indicated he was unhappy about Nixon's handicap. This congressman said Eisenhower was trying to find ways to help Nixon get more public attention in the interim before the Republican nominating convention.

Convent Plans Announced By Sacred Heart Parish Pastor

Monsignor Howard B. Hart, pastor of Sacred Heart Parish in Lincoln, Thursday released the plans for the new Sacred Heart Convent.

The convent is being built to house 11 Sisters of Charity, B.V.M., who teach in the parish grade and junior high school. Besides the 11 private rooms for the Sisters, there will also be a chapel, a large parlor, office, community room, dining room, kitchen, trunk room, housekeeper's suite, and a porch.

An enclosed patio will be formed between the convent and church with a cloister walk toward the street.

Martin Aitken is the architect. The style is Romanesque in keeping with the style of the new Sacred Heart Church which was completed in December of 1954.

Monsignor Hart said construction on the new convent will begin this spring.

Grubbs, Woodmen Tangle Monday

By Betty Person

State Insurance Director William Grubbs said late Thursday he will decide what course of action to take on Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society after a meeting he has scheduled with several of its directors Monday.

Grubbs has issued a subpoena for the records of the director's meeting which has just been concluded at Miami, Fla., and said he will go over these with them Monday in his office at the State Capitol.

"If I find it necessary, I will either make a formal request to the attorney general to begin quo warranto proceedings, or issue an order to show cause why the society's license should not be terminated," the insurance director said.

Assets To Court

"This latter course," Grubbs explained, "would then culminate in quo warranto proceedings in which the society's assets are placed in the hands of the courts for protection of the policy holders."

When informed that WOW headquarters office in Omaha had on display Thursday afternoon a large sign saying the society would not move from Nebraska, Grubbs said, "This is a pleasant statement, and I wish I had full confidence in it."

"I will be in a better position to judge the truth of the matter after I have personally examined the complete record of the board of directors meeting at which this decision was reportedly reached," said Grubbs.

It was disclosed earlier Thursday that the Insurance Department of Nevada has suspended the license of WOW to conduct business in that state.

Grubbs received notification of Nevada's action from Paul A. Hammel, Nevada insurance commissioner who is also president of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

In a letter to ousted WOW President Howard Lundgren, a copy of which was sent to Grubbs, Hammel said:

"I regret to find it necessary to advise you that Nevada must suspend the license of your fraternal insurance company to do business in Nevada until such time as you can provide us with a certificate from the Insurance Department of the State of Nebraska that the Omaha Woodmen Life Insurance Society (name under which WOW operates in Nevada) is duly licensed and in good standing in its state of domicile."

Grubbs said this means the society can issue no new policies in that state, but that those now in effect will remain valid.

The Nebraska insurance director further explained that all WOW policies in effect will remain valid and that the "assets of the society wil be protected by the Insurance Department through due processes of law for the benefit of the policy holders, not only in Nebraska, but everywhere."

No Comment

Grubbs conferred for 45 minutes in his office Thursday morning with Lundgren and his attorney, Alex McKie of Omaha, about the "general affairs" of the Miami board meeting at which Lundgren was removed from office by the directors.

Lundgren declined to make any comment to reporters when he left Grubbs' office, stating only, "I don't think I have anything to say at this time."

Grubbs has had an Insurance Department examiner at the society's headquarters since March 4, and said Thursday that another has been added.

"Every time the (WOW) vault is opened, one of the examiners will walk into the vault and stay there until the transactions are completed," he said.

Civil Defense Checking On Flood Losses

Washington—The Office of Civil Defense Mobilization is working on estimates of the costs of recovery in the flood-ravaged part of Nebraska.

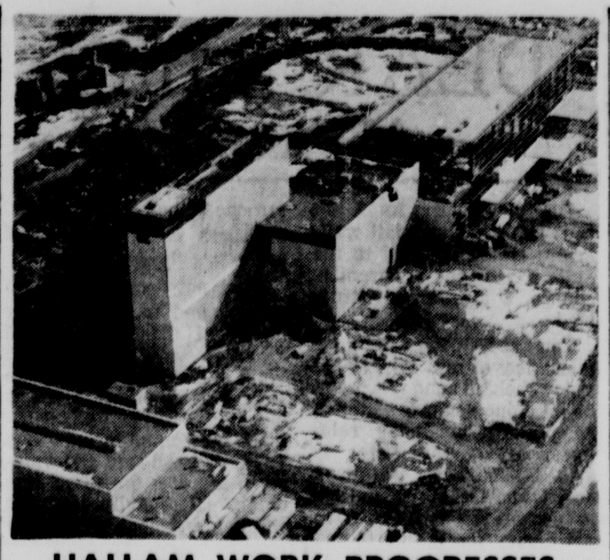

However, according to Robert Waggoner, regional director, it will be sometime before a final figure for federal aid can be reached, because of the large number of Nebraska counties requesting aid.

He said estimates on repair work to highways, streets, bridges, utilities, as well as the examination of individual requests, takes a great deal of time.

"We're rushing as fast as we can, but by the nature of this thing it's going to take a long time," he added.

Musk Substitute

New Delhi (AP)—India has developed a synthetic substitute for musk, an ingredient of fine perfumes and hopes it will eliminate the slaughter of the shy little musk deer of the north India highlands. Mustard oil is the base of the new product.

HALLAM WORK PROGRESSES

Construction work at the CPPD 100,000-kilowatt Sheldon Station has progressed rapidly with only the steam boiler room at left unroofed. The steam power division of the Hallam plant is slated to go into operation in April 1961.

Inter-Agency Confab Slated April 19 On Airport Proposal

An inter-agency meeting on the Lincoln airport situation, as proposed by the Federal Aviation Agency, is scheduled for April 19 in Lincoln.

State Aeronautics Director Jack Obbink said the meeting would be attended by Washington representatives of the Federal Aviation Agency and the Air Force, the Lincoln Airport Authority and his department.

Purpose of the meeting "will be to further review on an exploratory basis" joint-use of the Lincoln Air Force Base.

The Lincoln Airport Authority had requested a re-evaluation of joint-use of the base after the FAA failed to approved in late 1959 federal airport funds for a proposed new municipal airport east the city.

Obbink said the FAA indicates the meeting will be "exploratory" and "no decisions will be made as of that time."

The FAA has not announced its views on the joint-use position announced by the Air Force, but requested the inter-agency meeting to be held here.

YMCA City-Wide Fund Drive Opens

Lincoln's city-wide YMCA World Service fund drive, with a goal of $2,400, began Thursday with a kick-off supper at the Central YMCA building.

The World Service drive is conducted by YMCA groups throughout the North American continent and reaches into 77 countries under the banner "Helping Others to Help Themselves."

Drive chairman is Monroe Usher and division chairmen for the Lincoln drive include Warren Urbom, Paul Bogott and Howard Gerstenbarger.

Free Love Plea Costs Prof's Job

Champaign, Ill. (UPI)—The University of Illinois Thursday announced it would fire a professor who urged free love instead of just petting for college students.

University President David Dodd Henry directed that Leo F. Koch, 44, assistant professor of biological sciences, be relieved immediately of all duties.

His job at the university will end at the conclusion of the academic year, Henry said.

Letter In Print

Koch, who is married and the father of 3 children, created a campus furor March 18 when the Daily Illini, the university student newspaper published a letter he had written on the subject of sexual morality.

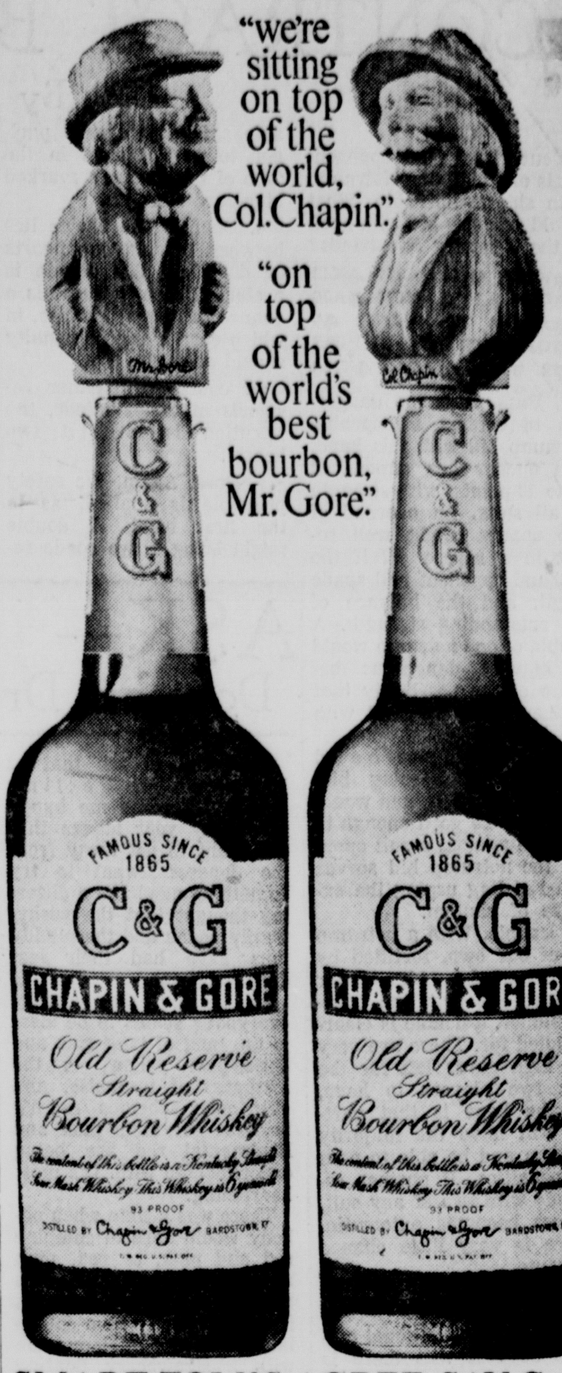

The letter said "A mutually satisfactory sexual experience would eliminate the need for many hours of frustrating petting and lead to much happier and longer-lasting marriages among our younger men and women."

Appeal Hearings Set For License Seekers

The State Liquor Control Commission Thursday set hearings on appeals by two persons and two firms of denials of their applications for licenses by local governing bodies.

Set for April 26 were the appeals of D. H. Meves of Grand Island, seeking a beer permit, and Betty Seigel of Omaha, seeking a class C liquor license.

Set for April 27 are the appeal of C. D. K., Inc., West Lincoln, seeking a class C liquor license, and the Pappio Company, Inc., Omaha, seeking an off sale beer license.

QUIZ

Your right hand opponent deals and bids One Notrump, both sides vulnerable. What would you now bid with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠KJ852 ♥10 ♦AJ74 ♣KJ3
2. ♠Q93 ♥AQ82 ♦KJ7 ♣AJ6
3. ♠AJ9863 ♥9 ♦AQ742 ♣5
4. ♠QJ43 ♥KQJ874 ♦AJ ♣7
5. ♠8 ♥AJ73 ♦AQ64 ♣KJ82

1. Pass. It is too dangerous to contest an opening notrump bid with this hand. The opener has announced 16 to 18 points, with strength in all suits. An overcall of two spades might well result in a severe set if the lefthand opponent had spade length and the balance of the outstanding strength. A double of one notrump would be equally dangerous because of the possibility that partner might respond with two hearts.

Even though our hand rates as an opening bid, standing by itself, and would ordinarily be good enough to compete against a suit opening, the notrump bid serves as a red flag urging the exercise of caution.

2. Double. With a notrump bid of our own, fortified by the knowledge that our strength sits over the opening bidder, a double is clearly called for. There are very few high cards left for the next two players to have, but the hope is that partner will have the majority of them and be able to pass for penalties. If partner responds with two of any suit, a pass becomes automatic. There is very little chance of game.

3. Two spades. Although there are only 11 high-card points, the distributional features suggest that there is not only the possibility of outbidding the opponents for a part score, but also the possibility of making a game. A suit overcall of a notrump opening necessarily implies good distribution and, consequently reasonable safety. It invites partner to go on, even in the face of the opener's marked high-card strength.

4. Double. The choice lies between bidding two hearts or doubling. The double is preferred because there is a chance partner may pass, in which case a sizable penalty should accrue.

Of course, if partner responds in either minor, the intention is to bid two hearts.

5. Pass. Again, the safety principle is applied, as in the first hand. A double might bring a two spade response from partner, in which case we'd be in the soup.

In some hands in bridge, compromises must be made through inaction, even though it is possible that the best result may not be achieved. There is a reasonable chance that a part score could be made in one of our four-card suits, but it is too dangerous and too awkward to investigate the possibility.

Game chances are remote, and a large penalty should not be risked when only a part score is at issue.

ASK—

Dorothy Draper

I'm glad to see that at last people are getting bolder. It makes me happy to see by your letters that you want to get away from the Joneses...want to try something new! It's a cheering thought that the wishy-washy peach and the muddy tans have had their last gasp. (I hope.)

All across the country everybody seems to be alert to the tang of tangerine and lemon-peel yellow, to the freshness of turquoise, and even color schemes using brilliant geranium pink and Regimental red are being experimented with. It's most heartening.

There was a time when nobody would dare to combine red and pink, or red, pink and orange, but done with taste, the result can be as fresh and pretty as a sparkling glass of pink lemonade with a strawberry floating on top. So . . . be bold! Be brave! Be experimental!

Mrs. G. L. G. asks:

"My kitchen has a ceramic tile sink top of pale aqua color with the ceiling painted to match. Walls and woodwork are blossom white. There are two windows, one regular size, the other is six feet wide. Have traverse rods and wish to continue using draw drapes. What kind and color drapes do you suggest? Would like to add a few candy pink accessories to kitchen."

Dear Mrs. G. L. G.

If you're set on candy pink accessories with your aqua you'd better get a plaid for your windows that combines aqua, white and black with a soft pink.

Mrs. T. D. C. asks:

"We have an extra long sofa wall. Is there anything interesting you can suggest to break this up?"

Dear Mrs. T. D. C.:

Only the other day I saw an idea that might be just what you are looking for. Wallpaper was used on the wall, all except an area over the sofa (up, about 3 feet over the sofa and about one foot on either side.) This was painted the background color of the wall paper with pictures on the painted space over the sofa. It looked most attractive.

DEAR ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: As I sit here in the County jail waiting to be transferred to the State Prison for a narcotics charge, I am terribly troubled.

You see, Miss Abby, I must leave my 17-year-old sister behind and she will be all alone because we have no parents or living relatives. My young sister is also addicted to the drug and I know that when I go to prison she will have to get money for the habit and when you need money for the habit you will do anything to get it. Please advise me what to do. Thank you. Sincerely yours, W. F.

DEAR W. F.: Tell the sheriff that you must talk to a clergyman. Then tell the clergyman your story. He will arrange for treatments to cure your sister of the drug habit. He will also offer her spiritual guidance to help her to a better way of life. Bless you, and your sister. And good luck!

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and my boyfriend is 19. He is as sweet and thoughtful as a boy can be. He is the greatest as far as personality goes. The only thing wrong with him is that he leaves me home every Saturday night. I guess it may sound strange to you, but he dates me every Friday night and Sunday night, but Saturday night is his night with the guys. No girls, but that doesn't help me.

How can I make him see that I want to go out on Saturday night without sounding like an ungrateful girl?

BEV

DEAR BEV: If you don't want to sound like an "ungrateful girl" — stop acting like one. Keep your lip zipped or you'll be staying home every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday AND Sunday.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago my boss' wife (I am his new secretary) sent me one of her potted plants. My boss is very proud of his wife's "green thumb."

I am not very handy with plants, and to be perfectly honest, I didn't pay much attention to it, so it died. Well, what does anybody do with a dead plant? I threw it out.

His wife came to the office yesterday and said she wanted to see how the plant was doing. (Personally, I think she came to look me over.) Instead of telling her the plant died, I lied to her and told her I had taken it home.

My boss tells me it would be nice if I'd bring the plant back to the office in case his wife drops in again to see it. What do I do now?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: 'Fess up and tell your boss the plant died.

If you have a problem, write to Abigail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply enclose a self-addressed envelope.

Food, Drug Limitations Questioned

. . . BY FEEDMAN

By Glenn Kreuscher
Staff Farm Writer

Food and drug requirements affecting the grain and feed industry were the topics of discussion at the final day of the 32nd annual convention of Nebraska Grain and Feed Dealers Assn. Thursday.

Ed Glennon of Chicago, president of the American Feed Manufactures Assn. told grain men that they should be concerned about the Food and Drug limitations being placed on the feed industry which do not affect the safety of the feed.

Glennon encouraged feed men to insist on the government applying scientific judgment on decisions regarding feed additives.

'Resist'

Glennon said, "When safety is not a factor and the government insists on controlling your feed it is time for the industry to resist."

He credited the undue amount of publicity regarding feed additives as discouraging many companies in continuing the research that has provided better feeds. He predicted that this trend would continue until the Delaney Bill is more clearly defined as to what can be placed in livestock feeds.

The use of stilbestrol was termed safe for the man feeding beef cattle for market by Dr. C. F. Chappel of Indianapolis, Indiana, representing Eli Lilly Co.

Saver

He credited the use of stilbestrol with saving the producer $7 per head and a cost factor that is in turn favorable to the consumer in providing top quality beef.

Chappel stressed that stilbestrol was being used in compliance with government regulations and that scientific data compiled in colleges and industry tends to show that this growth improving additive is completely safe for human consumption.

C. R. Cogil of Ogallala was elected president of the association. Howard Elms of Lincoln was re-elected secretary.

Orlando, Fla. (AP) — Don Mincher, just acquired from the Chicago White Sox, hit two home runs and Bob Allison hit another Thursday to lead the Washington Senators to a 10-5 exhibition baseball victory over the Kansas City A's.

Mincher, who came to Washington with Earl Battey and $150,000 in exchange for Roy Sievers, hit a two-run homer in the first inning to touch of a 6-run spree against Bob Trowbridge.

St. Petersburg, Fla. (AP)—After allowing one hit in 6 innings, right-hander Bob Turley blew up in the 7th and Ryne Duren had to salvage the New York Yankees' 2-1 exhibition victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Turley was the first pitcher to be relieved during an inning by manager Casey Stengel this spring. The move came after a walk to Chico Fernandez which followed Neil Chrisley's double and Steve Bilko's scoring single.

Fort Myers, Fla. (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles exploded for 4 runs in the 8th inning, edging the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-8.

Highlighting the big 8th frame was a two-run home run by Gene Woodling into the trees in right field. He drove in Jackie Brandt who had singled for his 4th hit.

The Pirates rapped 14 hits off Oriole hurlers Milt Pappas and Hoyt Wilhelm. Included in the barrage were a two run home run by Dick Stuart in the 7th and a circuit blast by Bob Skinner and a run scoring triple by Don Hoak in the 3rd.

Alou Homers Twice

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — Rookie Matty Alou homered twice and the San Francisco Giants took a 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the final Cactus League game of the spring exhibition season.

Matty, a brother of the Giants' Felipe Alou, hit his first homer of the season in the 6th inning off Tom Brewer. He climaxed a 3-run rally in the 7th with his second shot over the right field wall with Joe Amalfitano aboard.

However, the Braves may have lost pitcher Lew Burdette for a while. The ace right-hander had to be taken out of the game in the 6th inning when he was hit on the left wrist by a line drive.

Fast Start For Palmer In Quest Of Masters

Favorable Ruling Helps Opening 67

Augusta, Ga. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, who usually saves his best for the last, got off to a tremendous start in the 24th Masters Golf Tournament Thursday helped by a favorable ruling on the same hole where his strongest rival, Ken Venturi, came a cropper.

Palmer, the 1958 Masters winner from Ligonier, Pa., shot an opening round of 33-34—67, 5 under par for the big, crowded Augusta National course, to take a two-stroke lead at the end of the first day.

Venturi, who had threatened half the way with a record-equalling 31 on the front nine, faded to an over-par 73 finish reminiscent of his last-round collapse of 4 years ago.

It was a ruling on the 12th hole, a short pitch over a creek, that set Venturi stumbling. On the same hole, Palmer was given the benefit of a free lift and made his par while Venturi hacked out a double bogey 5. From there on Ken was just about sunk and he took bogeys on 4 of the remaining 6 holes while blowing to a 42 on the last nine.

Afterward Venturi said he thought the ruling made by PGA tournament director Ed Carter was erroneous, although it was too late to do anything about it. The ball hit the green, skipped over and lodged in a hole in the bank which Venturi thought was made by another player. Carter told him he wasn't entitled to lift the embedded ball because it had hit the green first.

Palmer's tee shot on the same hole was short and was embedded at the top of a trap in soft ground. He was allowed to lift the ball and place it in a playable position. It was the same sort of ruling he got on the same hole two years ago, when he won the tournament.

But most of the way, the muscular, 29-year-old Palmer made his own good luck. His tremendous drives and fairway woods enabled him to play Augusta National's par 5 holes as if he owned them—an eagle and 3 birdies—and he was over par only twice on his tour of the 6,850-yard, par 36-36—72 course.

A crowd estimated at close to 15,000, probably the biggest first day turnout ever for the Masters, jammed around Palmer, its new long-hitting idol. Then it stormed out to watch Venturi's collapse.

For the first nine Venturi had only 31 strokes, equalling Gary Middlecoff's tournament record.

Two strokes behind Palmer at the finish were 4 players who hadn't figured much in the pre-tournament calculations—former champion Claude Harmon, Fred Hawkins, former PGA champion Dow Finsterwald, and handsome Jay Hebert.

England's Harry Weetman, young Don January of Denver and amateur Dr. Frank (Bud) Taylor, a Walker Cup player from Pomona, Calif., had 70s. Deane Beman, the young British Amateur champion from Bethesda, Md., bogeyed the last two holes and tied at 71 with U.S. Open champion Bill Casper and California's Gene Littler.

Beman was one of many players who had trouble on Augusta National's back nine, still soggy in spots from last week's rains. The upper part of the course was in good shape, and apparently made to order for low scoring with greens that would hold pitch shots well.

After today's second round, the field will be cut to the low 40 and ties—or all those within 10 strokes of the leader if there are more than 40—for the last two rounds.

Celtics Fall To St. Louis

St. Louis (AP)—The St. Louis Hawks did it the hard way, almost blowing a 26-point lead, but managed a 105-102 victory over the Boston Celtics Thursday night, squaring pro basketball's world series 3-3.

The Hawks bombed the Celtics 36-12 with a tremendous display of shooting, rebounding and defense in the 3rd quarter for a 90-64 lead.

But led by the Jones boys, Sam and K. C., the Celtics spurted back and before the Hawks woke up had shaved the lead to 4 points 102-98. Bob Pettit made a layup but quick goals by Bill Russell and Tom Heinsohn made it 104-102.

Then Si Green, a 21-point scorer, clinched it with a free throw with 8 seconds left.

The Hawks' victory sends the National Basketball Assn. title series into a deciding 7th game in Boston Saturday afternoon.

Cliff Hagan, the game's top scorer with 36 points, injured his leg in the last minute of play and may be hampered in the finale.

Ahead only 54-52 at halftime, the Hawks dropped back to a 54 all tie, then started a spurt of 21-3 over a 6 minute period for a 75-57 lead. Clyde Lovellette's great work in the pivot against Bill Russell led this drive.

In the last quarter, the Hawks seemed content to maintain a 20-point bulge. It was 99-81 with 6 minutes left when the Jones boys exploded.

Sam had 12 points and K.C. 10 in the last period.

Wesleyan Home Baseball, Track Seasons On Today

Nebraska Wesleyan and Dana College are a week late in getting the Nebraska College Baseball Conference underway this afternoon.

The pair are slated for 7-inning doubleheader action at 49th and Francis beginning at 1:30.

Wesleyan Coach Irv Peterson has 10 returning numeral winners and is looking for a strong team.

"We've got good pitching and good catching," Peterson says.

Second baseman Claire Fredstrom and outfielder-Louie Jensen are the only newcomers slated to open.

Others in the lineup are Ron Gillham, shortstop; Milan Phelps, 3rd base; Ron Bachman, first base; Lonnie Johnson, catcher; Lonnie Slaughter, outfield; Gary Mouden, outfield, and Duane Eichorn, pitcher.

Eichorn, Cheyenne, Wyo. soph, was the squad's workhorse last spring.

Peterson's team won the District XI NAIA playoff over NCBC champion Wayne Techers.

Daryl Mitchell, Larry Walberg, Lonnie Ehlers and Jim Munford are the other veterans.

Newcomers include Ron Nannen, Bob Kuhn, Eldon Lindquist, Charlie Ehlers, Bill Brown, Bruce DeBoer, Bob Routh, Dale Dedric, Tom Cunningham, Tom Murray, Larry Nelson and Ron Long.

The squad has a 17-game schedule in line. All conference games are doubleheader 7-inning affairs.

Remainder of the slate:

April 18—St. Cloud (Minn.), 19—Winona (Minn.) (tentative), 22—Midland, 23—at Omaha, 26—at Wayne, 29—Concordia.

May 3—Chadron, 6—Creighton, 13—at Peru, 20—Hastings, 20-21—at NAIA playoffs, Omaha, 23-24-25—at NAIA regionals, Omaha.

Anything Else To Lighten His Life?

St. Joseph, Mich. (AP)—Chicago's White Sox are taking over an automatic plate duster and a ball popper from Edgewater baseball park being dismantled here.

Both are labor-saving devices for umpires. The ball popper shoots baseballs to the pitcher and makes it unnecessary for the arbitor to load his pockets.

The gadgets were built here at the Auto Specialty Co.'s Plant, whose now-defunct semi-pro auscos played at the park.

Dana, Doane Provide Cinder Competition

By Paul LeBar

Nebraska Wesleyan thinclads get a chance to redeem themselves against Doane and Dana in triangular action this afternoon.

The Plainsmen, 99-37 losers to Kearney Teachers Tuesday, host the action beginning at 3:30 on the O. N. Magee Stadium cinders.

Greeno, defending performances of his runners against the Antelopes, predicts a firm track and improved marks.

Senior quarter-miler Dean Sell and sophomore sprinter Tony Herman rated highest on the mentor's list for early showings.

Sell, hobbled by injury a year ago, outdistanced Kearney runners to win in :52.3 on soft footing.

Herman outran Kearney sprinter Larry Gianakos in both dashes.

Wesleyan copped 6 of 10 running events but suffered in the field.

A 3rd place in the javelin earned by sophomore Ted Ritchey spared the Plainsmen a whitewashing.

Senior Gary Hofmann, an able quarter-miler, was shifted to the half and finished 4th at 2:04.

Hofmann may dual ex-Lincoln High ace Joe Moore in the 880. The latter has reportedly been slowed by illness.

Doane frosh Dean White and Wesleyan's Art Freiberg will hook up in the distances.

Herman will have his hands full against Tiger frosh Clinton Skinner in the sprints.

Doane's John Sieber challenges Wesleyan's tandem of Larry Bartels, Dean Pederson, Tom Whiddon and Dan McCord in the hurdles.

Dana, rated weak on the track, will try to pick up the slack in field events.

Doane's Harland Ramsey rates tops in the weights.

The Guessing Game

Just 4 days from now the 1960 major league baseball season will open—half of it, at least.

The National League swings into action on April 12th, but the American League will wait a week, opening on April 18 with the traditional ceremonies at Washington.

After playing a fast round of pin the tail on the donkey, I have decided this year to jinx Cleveland in the American League and San Francisco in the National League.

American League

CLEVELAND . . . If Joe Gordon does as good a job of managing as he did in 1959, the Indians could win the Pennant in spite of Frane Lane. Cal McLish is gone, but so is Billy Martin.

CHICAGO . . . Sox can take it again if gamble on veterans pays off. Power situation definitely improved, but if any of the old horses lose a shoe—trouble.

NEW YORK . . . How the mighty have fallen! Casey Stengel is still Casey Stengel, but his troops aren't Yankees in the established sense of the word. Last year's slumpers must bounce back tremendously to put NY in the flag picture.

KANSAS CITY . . . Optimistic guess that Athletics get good season from fellows like Hank Bauer, Norm Siebern, Don Larsen, Bob Cerv, Johnny Kucks and Bill Tuttle. Could be the surprise team of the league.

DETROIT . . . Tigers can be first division club if Chico Fernandez fills bill at shortstop. Pitching and hitting will be tough.

BALTIMORE . . . Pitching again will be highlight, and if some power turns up, the Orioles will cause more than ordinary trouble.

BOSTON . . Always shaky, the Red Sox are in real trouble with Ted Williams ailing and Sammy White and Jackie Jensen gone.

WASHINGTON . . . Home run potential won't overcome lack of pitching and weak infield.

National League

SAN FRANCISCO . . . Billy O'Dell, Billy Loes and Don Blasingame may be what Bill Rigney ordered.

LOS ANGELES . . . World champs still potent, with top pitching, good hitting and tough defense.

PITTSBURGH . . . Probably wishful thinking, but Bucs can be contender if Bob Friend returns to form, Gene Baker is healed and more power is found to go with Dick Stuart.

MILWAUKEE . . . Lack of depth and infield problems will keep Braves down.

CHICAGO . . . Richie Ashburn will help defensively and there's power a-plenty. Could crash first division.

CINCINNATI . . . Cal McLish and Bill Henry could help pitching problems.

ST. LOUIS . . . Cards' pitching and power should be improved, but not enough.

PHILADELPHIA . . . Eddie Sawyer has a building blueprint, but completion date not in sight.

Kerner, NBA Prexy Rage Over Refs

St. Louis (AP) — St. Louis Hawks owner Ben Kerner and Maurice Podoloff, president of the National Basketball Assn., engaged in a violent argument Thursday night over who will referee Saturday's deciding game of the title playoffs.

When Podoloff announced that Jim Duffy would be one of the referees, Kerner stormed and raged at the NBA president.

Witnesses said Podoloff replied in kind and at the close of the argument he picked up an ashtray and hurled it against the wall.

Then Podoloff, Jocko Collins, chief of NBA referees, and Hawks coach Easy Ed Macauley went back into a conference over the referee situation.

Macauley said Duffy was not acceptable to the Hawks and Sid Borgia was not acceptable to Boston coach Red Auerbach.

From the conference room, Podoloff said, "I may have a statement and I may not. There are vigorous protests against certain referees and because this game is so vital there may be some changes."

David City Tips Schuyler In Dual

Wall To Hurl Big 8 Debut At K-State

Manhattan, Kan. — Soph righthander Jan Wall will be on the mound when Nebraska's Cornhuskers open Big 8 Conference baseball against Kansas State this afternoon.

League play this season consists of Friday afternoon twin bills and single games Saturdays.

Nebraska copped a pair over the Wildcats both by 1-0 in Lincoln last spring.

Wall, 6-6, struck out 9 and issued two hits in his college debut against South Dakota State earlier this week.

Cornhusker Coach Tony Sharpe's right-handed pitching corps also includes Don Purcell, Dave Webster, Ron Cougill, Orvis Larsen and Harry Tolly.

The Cornhuskers move to Tulsa (Okla.) for single games Monday and Tuesday.

They engage Emporia State (Kan.) on the return trip home Wednesday.

St. Cloud (Minn.) is Nebraska's foe at home Thursday before the Cornhuskers host Missouri for 3 games over the weekend.

Traveling squad:

Phil Barth, Dick Becher, Ely Churchich, Cougill, Jerry Harris, Larry Isaacson, Larsen, Dick Nelson, Earl Oltman, Purcell, Ken Ruisinger, Bob Semin, Doug Sieler, Rex Swett, Elmer Takenishi, Tolly, Don Vogel, Wall, Webster, LeRoy Zentic.

Snead Rebuked For His 'Mistake'

Augusta, Ga. (AP) — Sam Snead drew a mild rebuke—and no more—from the Professional Golfers Assn. Thursday night for purposely continuing in a television match which by the rules he already had lost.

The great professional from White Sulphur Springs, West Va., was called before the PGA executive committee to explain details of the celebrated match he lost to Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., on NBC's "World Championship Golf."

Snead acknowledged that he continued the match but intentionally made sure of losing it after discovering on the 12th hole that he had an extra—or 15th—club in his bag.

"An announcement will be made tomorrow by the PGA," said Harold Sargent, the PGA president. "We met with Sam to hear his side of it.

"We felt that Sam made a mistake in judgment in not calling his penalty as soon as he discovered the extra club but we can see where he would be confused by the circumstances—grinding cameras, fear that he would spoil a television show and so forth.

"We know Sam is honest as the day is long. He didn't throw the match, as has been suggested. He merely went through the motions after finding out the match already had been lost.

"It wasn't a payola thing at all. Actually, in doing what he did, Sam lost thousands of dollars. It was creditable in a way but also a very bad mistake on Sam's part.

"It produced a black eye for the game which was not deserved."

By Larry Novicki

Fair weather should produce action in all spring sports on the local scene today and Saturday.

Uni High and Pius X track hopefuls clash this afternoon at 3 on the Pius X oval. It will be the season opener for both units.

Saturday Northeast and Southeast travel to the tough Columbus Invitational.

Featured in the 60-team two-class carnival are Omaha Central and Columbus, last year's number one and two teams. The host outfit is the defending champion.

In baseball today Southeast travels to Omaha Cathedral. The Knights have one game under their belts, an extra-inning 5-3 loss to defending Class B champ Seward Concordia.

Southeast, getting the jump on other local teams in most spring sports, entertains Boys Town in tennis this afternoon.

Golf teams take to the links for the first time today.

Lincoln High and Southeast tangle with Omaha Westside in a double dual beginning at 2 p.m. at Pioneer Park.

Northeast, Beatrice and Fremont start things off at Pioneer with a regular triangular affair at 1 p.m.

Saturday Pius X, defending B golf titlist, travels to Beatrice.

MINORS ON SOLID FOUNDATION—HAL TOTTEN

'Reached Bottom—Now Headed Up'

By Ron Speer
The Associated Press

Cedar Rapids, Iowa (AP) — The worst is over for minor league baseball, says Hal Totten who directed the historic Three-I League through 9 of the minor's darkest years.

"We've reached the bottom. Now we're headed up."

Totten, 57 years old and as baseball spirited as any youngster in his league, is the new president of the Class AA Southern Assn. He resigned Wednesday night as head of the Three-I League.

"After World War II everybody wanted a baseball team," he said in an interview Thursday. "There just weren't enough players to go around. It was natural for many of them to fold.

"But now we're on a solid foundation. Most of the teams are locally owned, and that's one of the basic principles of good baseball.

"Nobody cares about a team's financial condition if the team is owned by some millionaire who also owns a major league club. You've got to give local fans and owners the responsibility of seeing to it that the club prospers so it will be around next year."

Agreement Vital

Totten said it is vital that minor league teams have a player agreement with major league teams.

"For them, it's player development," he said. "For us, it's minor league support."

Totten's tireless efforts often were the difference between survival and oblivion for the Three-I League, the nation's oldest Class B circuit now entering its 53rd season.

"Always have a couple of teams lined up and eager to get in," Totten advised. "I don't believe in nursing a sick horse back to life. I go after new blood. Only two of the teams are left that were in the league when I took over in 1951."

Changing Shirt

Totten said he became president of the Three-I "While I was changing shirts. I had gone to Keokuk as a radio man, and they made me vice president of their club. We went to a league meeting which lasted two days because the president quit. I had to buy another shirt and while I was getting it they elected me president."

Totten said the Southern Assn. is one of the healthiest minor leagues in baseball.

Father Of 7 Found Dead In Wreckage

Sidney (AP) — Fred A. Humphrey, 44, an employe of the Sioux Ordnance Depot fire department, was found dead Thursday near his wrecked car.

The car had traveled 375 feet after it left State Spur 30, about 8½ miles west and north of Sidney.

Sheriff W. W. Schulz said the accident could have happened anytime after 10 p.m. Wednesday. The car was barely visible from the road when it was located Thursday morning.

State Trooper Robert Zapp said the vehicle was headed south and failed to make an S curve. Leaving the road, he said, it rolled over and down a hill.

Humphrey was the father of 7 children and his wife was expecting another child, Zapp said.

The death raised the state highway fatality toll for the year to 45 as compared with 66 a year ago.

Boy Suffers Gun Wound In Odd Mishap

Grand Island (AP)—A 13-year-old boy was reported progressing satisfactorily in a hospital Thursday after undergoing surgery for a bullet wound suffered under unusual circumstances.

Gary Caudill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Caudill, was playing in his own yard when he was struck by a bullet at the base of the spine.

Police canvassed the neighborhood to find where the bullet came from. They had no success and were called back to the Police Station.

Relates Incident

Keith Stubbs, a neighbor living across the street, was at headquarters and told this story:

Stubbs was sitting in a chair in the front room of his home geting ready to clean a .22 caliber rifle. His wife suggested they take a ride in the car.

Stubbs got up and threw the rifle over his shoulder, the bullet discharging accidentally. The bullet went through the west window of the Stubbs home and he thought it hit a tree.

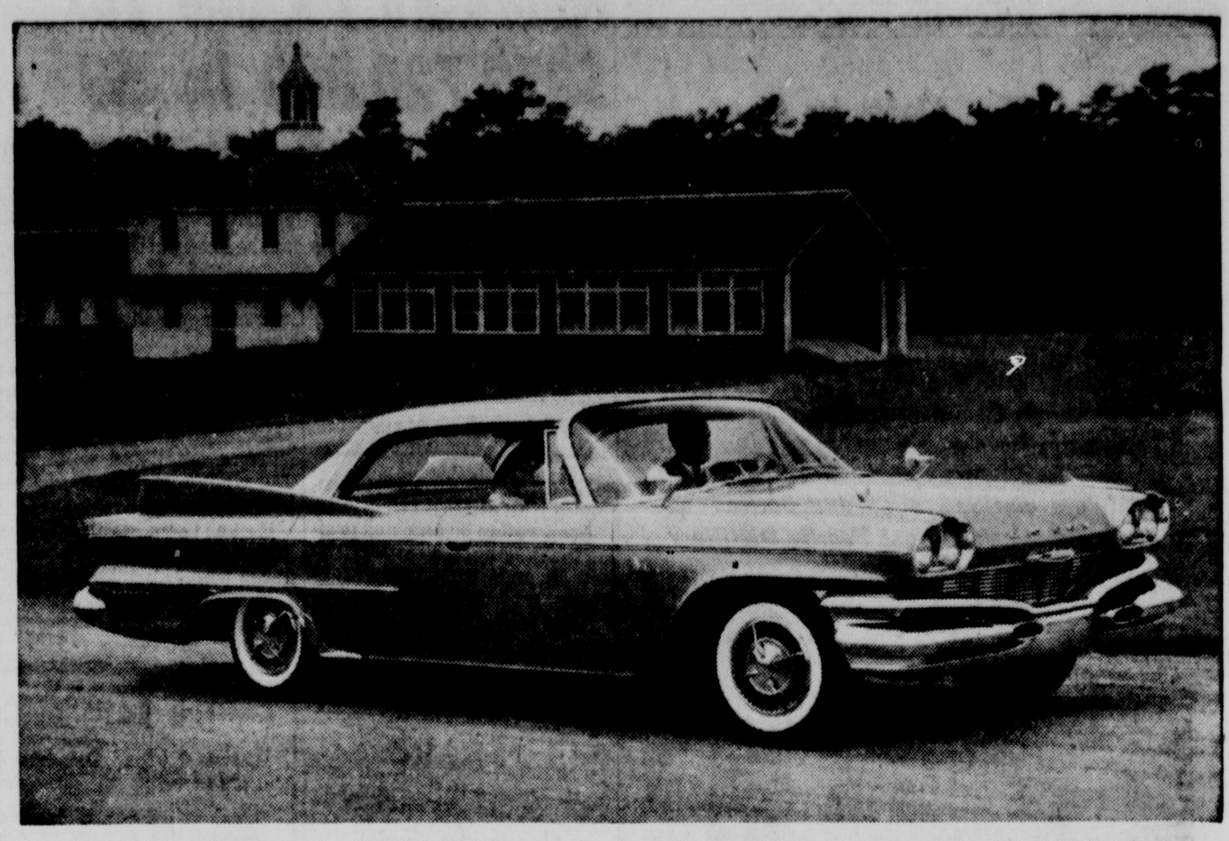

Stubbs and his wife got into the car and started a drive downtown. He turned on the car radio and heard about the neighbor boy being shot.

Stubbs went to the Police Station. Police checked the route the bullet would have taken and concluded it was the one which struck the boy.

Petition Protesting Tecumseh Postal Appointment Is Sent To Washington

By Dean Terrill
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Tecumseh—Petitions signed by some 400 persons have been sent to the U.S. Senate Post Office and Civil Service committee protesting the eligibility of John Putman for a postmaster appointment.

Don Gorton, one of the chief objectors to Putman's recent appointment as acting postmaster, said the petitions stated that "he is not qualified for reasons known by the Civil Service Commission." The petitions also protested the action of the Civil Service in declaring ineligible two other postmaster candidates, Lorin Blume and Leland Olsen.

"This appears to be the final step we can take in protesting the appointment," said Gorton, "but I think it will be an effective one."

Only Senate approval is needed for Putman's appointment to become premanent. The protests were sent to Sen. Olin D. Johnson, committee chairman.

Putman was officially nominated for the post by President Eisenhower upon the recommendation of Rep. Phil Weaver. Weaver claimed he acted after getting counsel from Walter Kiechel Sr., Johnson County GOP chairman.

Gorton had been declared the No. 2 candidate following the Civil Service examination.

Senate confirmation of the permanent appointments sometimes takes 6 to 18 months.

Federal Groups Checking Flood Damage Needs

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Carl Curtis (R-Neb) said after conferences with several federal agencies here, field officials of these agencies are making thorough surveys to determine where assistance will be needed in flood-stricken Nebraska.

The Nebraska Republican said one specific problem related to flood damage to corn and other grain sealed under loans on the farm.

"Steps should be taken to relieve farmers, insofar as possible, of loss from flood damage which is certainly beyond their control," he said.

Curtis said he was advised by Louis N. Roberts, associate director, grain division, Department of Agriculture, that the loss of sealed corn from flood damage will be assumed by the department of agriculture.

Mosley Turned Down

London (AP)—Britain's high court has rejected charges by Fascist leader Sir Oswald Mosley that vote juggling caused him to run last in a race for the North Kensington parliamentary seat. He got 2,621 votes out of about 35,000 cast.

Griffin Draws 2-Year Term

Omaha (AP) — Raymond G. Griffin, 33, Omaha, who was found guilty of violating the Mann Act by a federal jury March 22, was sentenced to two years in prison Thursday by Federal Judge Richard E. Robinson.

Griffin also was sentenced to two years for an attempted escape on the same date the jury found him guilty. Judge Robinson ruled the attempted escape sentence would run concurrently with the Mann Act violation sentence.

Deputy U.S. Marshal Earl Sweeney of Lincoln suffered a broken ankle as he dived down the steps to a landing in an attempt to recapture Griffin. He was taken back into custody when another deputy marshal spotted him leaving the postoffice here.

Original charges against Griffin grew out of sex parties involving 12 and 13 year old girls. The girls' mother, Mrs. Dorothy Gray, was found guilty by the same jury that convicted Griffin, but she was not sentenced Thursday.

Earnest P. Leonard, 22, Omaha, who pleaded no defense to charges in the same case, was sentenced to two years Thursday, but the sentence was suspended. Judge Robinson placed Leonard on probation for 3 years.

Superior Mayor Mrs. Hanna Loses Post In Write-In Drive

Superior (AP) — The write-in vote has proved to be a more potent political tool than the caucus in Superior.

Two years ago Mrs. Arabelle Hanna was elected mayor on a write-in vote. This year she was defeated by a write-in vote, 379 to 287.

Mrs. Hanna

George Lawson, chairman of the board of public works, was nominated for mayor by one party at the city caucus, but he subsequently withdrew.

Then on election day, his supporters simply wrote in his name on the ballot and elected him in spite of his withdrawal.

He said he will accept the job.

Lawson is Missouri Pacific Railroad agent at Superior.

Merle Hayes, Hugh Meyers and John Todd were elected to the Superior City Council and Kenneth Hobbie and Dr. Dale Kinyoun were named to the School Board.

Jack D. Obbink, Nebraska director of aeronautics, will be the guest speaker.

Criticism Of Education Said 'Not Just' By Noted Teacher

A noted educator Thursday struck out at recent criticism education is receiving in a speech before the University of Nebraska Teachers College.

Dr. Clifford E. Erickson of Michigan State University told the group there was a need to examine the vital questions which should be asked about education.

"We must examine what the central role education really plays in the preservation and development of our society," he said.

Willing

"Are we really willing to fight for freedom, common welfare, for our committment for educational opportunity and the toleration of uniqueness and individuality? he asked.

The authority told the group that this is the period in the development of education when our own people must determine what educational decisions are made at the state level and what decisions are made in the national interest.

Revive Tradition

Wayne—The Wayne State Teachers College choir and orchestra will present "The Seven Last Words of Christ" here Sunday night, reviving a series that extended over about 12 years. Prof. Russel Anderson directs the 120-voice choir and Prof. Benjamin Bernstein is in charge of the 45-piece orchestra for this performance.

De Gaulle Escorts Queen To Theater As Philip Trails

By Eddy Gilmore

London (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle wound up his state visit to Britain Thursday night by escorting Queen Elizabeth II to the Royal Opera House.

The official announcements had said the queen and her husband, Prince Philip, would journey from Buckingham Palace to the opera house in one car.

The French president, the announcements added, would come along later with his wife in another car.

But when the first palace automobile drew up before the opera house, out popped the smiling French president. And just as smilingly followed the queen.

A few minutes later another car brought Philip and Mrs. de Gaulle.

The royal opera house was decorated with 25,000 fresh pink carnations and 600 yards of specially woven parma silk.

During the first intermission royal footmen in full livery served iced champagne and special goodies from the palace.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY

Code Of Ethics Unlikely To Create New Morals

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

The naive hope has been expressed before the House subcommittee investigating executive agencies that, if legislation will set up a code of ethics, personalities on the federal regulatory agencies will perform better.

Rukeyser

The weakness in this view has been demonstrated in the financial area, by way of illustration, in the legal straitjacket on trustees imposed in New York State by statute and by 150 years of legal precedents. The fiduciary laws hold trustees to such rigid accountability that, for self-protection, they frequently shrink from taking normal and desirable risks in investing funds for heirs. The law is so inflexible that it interferes with the scientific attitude of regarding the investment fund as a unit. Thus, if, for example, the total fund has benefited from nine successful investments, with the tenth showing a loss, such mishap cannot be offset against the total gain. As a matter of fact, the fiduciary can be sued for the loss, and cannot in defense point to the overall gain.

The fiduciary law is more flexible in such states as Illinois and Massachusetts.

Nine attorneys, in advising clients how to draw wills, urge that the testators use language to exempt their trustees from such harsh provisions, and encourage them to behave as prudent persons would in handling their own personal funds. But, if you are going to trust men, or banking institutions, you must select them with care in respect to integrity and competency.

It seems to me that the same principles of human nature apply to governmental officials.

You cannot make a person of easy morals virtuous by setting up a theoretical code of ethics.

In an interdependent society, we all rely on the good faith of others. This applies not only to trustees and highly placed officials, but also to maintenance workers who tighten screws on airplanes when they are serviced on the ground.

When the chips are down, it is well to be aware of the degree to which the ordinary flow of business depends on moral law.

There would be greater popular enthusiasm for the American free-choice economic society if there were broader recognition of its essentially spiritual base. Our economic design for living is in competition with the godless Soviet system, which cynically relies on force rather than on the desire of men to do the right thing voluntarily.

Right now, congressmen are debating where to draw the line on proper entertainment of federal regulatory officials by those who may be appearing before them.

The test must be more or less subjective. If a bureaucrat is so weak that he can be bought or corrupted by a cocktail, then he ought to isolate himself.

Recently there was much ado when it was revealed that the chairman of the Federal Power Commission had twice seen privately the attorney for a company with a rate case coming up.

Each situation must be judged on its merits, but in the rush and complexity of current business, there have frequently been legitimate private meetings, which get to the nub of a subject faster than formal procedures.

A vice president of a large operating utility, who believes in clean government, tries to endear himself to regulatory commissioners by getting and deserving a reputation for always presenting the facts straight. Accordingly, some have come to rely on him for information and clarification.

In the spirit of those who would control men by writing rigid codes of ethics, the late James Gordon Bennett, New York newspaper publisher, had a rule that editorial men should never speak to personalities in the advertising department. The objective was to prevent the business office from influencing the editorial department, but such an inflexible rule indicated a distrust for the independence and integrity of his editorial associates.

Returning from a trip to the West Coast, I was invited to a luncheon in the lush quarters of a well-known Wall Street investment banking firm. At the end of the meal, one of the partners remarked that the guests were expected to earn their way by expressing themselves about financial trends. He asked me what I thought about the outlook for the stock market. I replied: "If you don't mind, I'd like to pay $3 for the lunch and be excused from making a prediction."

Instead of freezing rules of conduct and thus inhibiting honest public servants—the crooks will write their own rules—it seems more desirable to select for office personalities of such integrity and intelligence that they will naturally behave properly. As Grover Cleveland put it, "a public office is a public trust."

If you have to spell this concept out in great detail, the public official is not fit for the preferment.

Integrated Housing Not 'Impossible'

"You will hear the word impossible time and time again but good things can happen if you only try. It will take your determination to make this a city of friendliness."

These words were spoken by Morris Milgram, president of Modern Communication Development Inc., at the Action Coordinating Team meeting Thursday night.

Milgram said that integrated housing projects have been successful in other communities and likewise could be successful in Lincoln. MCD has segregated building projects in various stages in 7 states, he said. There are 75 or more privately built integrated projects besides, he added.

The Lincoln ACT is planning a vigorous campaign to raise $100,000 to form the MCD of Lincoln.

Shares of common stock will be sold for $100 a share, according to ACT president Lois Weaver.

If the goal of $100,000 is reached, Milgram said the national MCD would add another $50,000 to the project.

Mrs. Weaver said the program would not solve the integrated housing problem in Lincoln but "would be a big stride in that direction."

Papal Stamps Out

Vatican City (UPI) — The Vatican has issued a special series of stamps commemorating Refugee Year.

Sewage Treatment, Hospital

Nebraska will receive less money next year for its sewage treatment plant and hospital construction programs, according to tentative congressional allocations reported in Lincoln Thursday.

T. A. Filipi, state sanitarian, said he has been sent a "work sheet" which shows Nebraska listed for $677,575 for sewage plant construction in fiscal 1961 on the House appropriations bill.

Last year the state received about $685,000. The funds would be from a nationwide appropriation of 50 million dollars, which congressional leaders apparently expect to pass, Filipi said.

As for hospital construction, Verne Pangborn, head of the Nebraska Division of Hospitals, said a tentative allocation of $1,560,065 has been made for Nebraska, compared to $1,929,122 received last year.

Pay 40%

The allocations, under the Hill-Burton Act, provide for 40% of the cost of construction of hospitals and other facilities.

The tentative amount would mean a decrease in funds for hospitals and rehabilitation facilities, Pangborn said.

The breakdown was as follows (last year's figures in parentheses):

Hospitals $1,210,541 ($1,530,074), chronic disease hospitals $100,000 (same), diagnostic or treatment centers $100,000 (same), rehabilitation facilities $50,000 ($99,524), and nursing homes $99,524 (same).

$35,000 Road Damage

Broken Bow (AP) — County Highway Superintendent Jim Fagan has estimated that the cost of bringing Custer County roads and bridges up to the pre-winter standards will be about $35,000. He said he believes there isn't a road in the county system that will not require some extra maintenance or repair.
